FANDOM

Each fandom forms a tight-knit community, comprising passionate individuals united by their profound love for the shared interest that brought them together. While this camaraderie is truly remarkable, it's essential to establish rules to ensure the continued happiness and safety of all members within this community.

Therefore, I kindly request everyone to adhere to a few crucial guidelines:

♦ Don't attack other people under any circumstance.

It could be that in the future tensions may arise with other people, and while this is something that I hope it'll never happens, it's a real possibility in any moment, sadly.

I ask of you to please not engage in the exchange of possible hate, let's demonstrate to be better than the other side.

♦ Respect each other

Anyone of us has their own circumstances, beliefs and ideas. While not everyone might agree with each other, nothing stops us from being able to act as responsible adults and human (or elven) beings.

Let's protect each other by behaving in the best way we can with each other!

♦ Be kind

In general, please apply common sense, that's the real thing that will help everyone get along with each other, and remember, sometimes an act of kindness helps in ways no one expects!
