6 11 24 Today's memorable student is Mr. Miller. I loved this student because of his wonderful citizenship. He was always ready to help. He went the extra mile. He was very enthusiastic.

He brought some little presents sometimes. As you can tell by the way he made the intro to his project, it shows how much he like to be creative. We shot a video on the last day of school. I have never showed it to anyone but I am sure that i will. Thank you Mr. Miller for being such a wonderful student. Oh I remember on one occasion where I had an assignment where my students were made to be teachers. He really enjoyed helping other students. I really was happy to see him enjoy teaching. I also remember that he was a great animator. I loved his animations and he would always take criticism as a constructive tool. Mr. Miller if you are listening or watching this, thank you, thank you, thank you for being a wonderful student. You are a great display of citizenship

Television series that was called Intense. In this series, I would act like a clown and film the scenes with 4 to 6 camera angles. Ninety nine percent was improvised acting. Mr. Llopiz did some awesome editing with this series. He still has his videos up of his work. I often reminisce about the good old days. My other students also produce their website and upload their work, but only a few projects. I was disappointed with that because I wish that I could see their projects now. I do probably have them stashed away somewhere but I'm a lil lazy to look for them. Anyway, I THANK all my memorable students for paying attention to my instruction for doing their assignments. That to me, is the greatest example of citizenship. Including the greatest joy of people responding to the lessons you taught as a teacher. Hopefully you all are still producing great MAGIC.

4 9 24 Today I'm going to write about Sunny. Sunny was a very sociable student. He would always ask how my day was going. He was the type of student that I had to push. I differentiate the way I taught him. He would often get off task. But the great thing about Sunny was that he would have no problem being redirected. I believe that I got him to do his work by offering a special position in the classroom. Since I knew that he was very sociable with other students. I made him my supervisor of the computer lab. He would be responsible for handing out the equipment and picking it up. He would also talk to other students to get them on task. Of course then he would get off task when he did this task. Eitherway, I kept on eye on Sunny. I remember that one time, i took my son to school. He was very friendly to my son. But the most memorable time that I had of Sunny was when he saw me behind his bus that was taking him home. He looked like he was on the side in one of the windows. He urged the bus driver to stop the bus and for him to get out. I couldn't believe it. He then walked to my car just to say hello. I told him that I was doing fine and that he needed to get back on the bus before we had an accident in all this traffic. He shook my hand and went back into the bus. I drove off the parking lot thinking, "who does that?". I felt he really liked me as a teacher and I cherished that moment all the way home. In contrast with all the other bad kids, he made me feel spectacular. Thank you Sunny.
