BACKSTORY

CWs: ||Slimy alien stuff, really. And some sad death||

Frank Winston III, most of the time going by Winnie, is a Libanasi, an alien that looks like the cross of a shrimp and a praying mantis. He was adopted by humans as a little 'prawn', and kept in secret until he was legitimately too big to hide.

Winnie's adopted dad, Frank the second, ||was fatally shot in the field||. In his will, he left his body to science, but specifically to make an organic skin for his adopted son, so he could be out in the world without fear. To honor his late dad, Winnie went to the police academy too, practically wearing his form as his own. Even when aliens were accepted all over as citizens, Winnie still stays in his human form. Now almost 40, Winnie is a tall, squishy teddy bear who enjoys pop culture and unhealthy food.
