

After several weeks of festivals, work, deadlines, Avigni and Endymion decided to take some time off, working on projects together -now- was great, but they wanted to try being together without thinking about anything but their own pleasures.

Surprises would be difficult, so they both decided to organize what they would do together, drew lots and chose to stay in an all-inclusive hotel in a country town.

Endymion told them to go with his car, so the trip would be them and only them there. They traveled for three and a half hours, straight, gossiping, listening to music, chatting and having fun.

When they arrived at the hotel, they picked up their suitcases and checked in, receiving their room numbers and directions to their accommodation.

The hotel was made up of three towers that formed a large "U" around 10 heated swimming pools.

They passed by the pools, seeing all the attractions around them: spa, gym, restaurants, bars, games room, cinema.

They took the elevator up to the fourth floor. When they arrived at their apartment, the air conditioning was on, cooling off the hot afternoon. The room was large, with a pantry connected to a spacious living room with a tempered window overlooking the pools, a TV and a large sofa. In the pantry there was a small fridge, a microwave, a four-seater table and a sink. To the left, there was a corridor with a sink, liquid soap attached to an iron on the wall, a hairdryer and several towels in the cupboard below the sink.

The bathroom had a shower in the glass box and also a smaller Jacuzzi.

The bedroom had two beds, a king size double and a single, dressers between the beds and an open closet. It also had windows overlooking the hotel's internal area.

As soon as he had straightened his clothes, Avigni took out the hotel map and sat down next to Endymion on the sofa, showing him the other spaces they had further into the hotel.

In addition to the attractions in the main courtyard, which they had passed on the way in, there was a sauna area, indoor swimming pools, a casino, four more restaurants in the corners of the hotel, a karaoke room and a children's area. In addition, the hotel had activities throughout the day, such as workshop competitions, contests and more.

Avigni put on his bathing suit and helped Endymion apply sunscreen to his body. He was anxious to get into the pool, he would spend the day in it and then enjoy the rest that the hotel had to offer.

Endymion applied the cream to Avigni and they went downstairs to enjoy it.

Of the 10 swimming pools, they chose one that wasn't so hot, as the afternoon was already warm. Avigni spared no effort to order every kind of drink he wanted to try, most of them non-alcoholic, others he had the luxury of tasting, he ordered snacks to share with Endymion and took part in some activities in the pool.

When it was evening, Avigni leaned on the edge of the pool, gently tapping his legs, making a few waves in the pool, Endymion standing in front of him.

The movements of his legs changed to something more sensual and calm, until his legs brushed against Endymion's waist and embraced her.

Endy's body came close to Avigni's, pressing against him, their faces came closer and they kissed. They were both fighting the urge to grab each other at that moment, but they knew they were in the middle of several other rabbits and had to control themselves.

The night was already at its peak, Avigni moved his body slightly away from his lover's, they got out of the pool, they would go back to their room to get ready for dinner and the rest of the night, because it was far from over