

Proposal Number:

Criterion	0	1	2	3
1. Relevance and currency of the topic	The topic is not current and the content of the proposal would not be of interest to either English teachers or researchers.	The topic is somehow current and the content of the proposal might be of interest to either English teachers or researchers.	The topic is current and the content of the proposal would be of definite interest to either English teachers or researchers	The topic is very current and the content of the proposal would be of interest to both English teachers and researchers.
2. Clarity of session description and outcomes	The proposal is inappropriate for the session type. The description of the session is too vague for a good understanding of the session and the objectives are not clearly stated or implied.	The proposal may be appropriate for the session type. The description of the session allows for a general understanding of the topic and the objectives and participant outcomes are implied but not explicitly stated, or may be too general or broad to be achievable.	The proposal is appropriate for the session type. The description of the session allows for a specific understanding of the topic and the objectives and participant outcomes are stated or implied but may lack sufficient focus.	The proposal is appropriate for the session type. The description of the session is clear and clearly details the purpose and the objectives and participant outcomes are clear and achievable.
3. Evidence of theory-practice link	There is no theory-practice link.	The proposal lacks a clear link between theory and practice	There is some evidence of research/theory support.	There is a strong and relevant theory/research as evidence/support.
4. Quality of proposal as indicator of presentation quality	The language used in the proposal suggests that the presentation may be poor.	The language used in the proposal suggests that the presentation may be uneven or of moderate quality.	The language used in the proposal suggests that the presentation will be of an acceptable quality.	The proposal is well written and suggests that the presentation will be of a good quality.

Score: _____ / 12