COURSES TAUGHT

The University of Southern California

At USC, I have taught in psychology and in education --the Ph.D. class in social psychology (Psych 512, 2014, 2018, 2020, 2023), a Ph.D. class on self and motivation (Psych 612, 2015, 2018, 2022), a Ph.D. class on social psychological perspectives on culture (Psych 612 2019) and a Ph.D. class on translational intervention (Ed 599, 2016).

The University of Michigan

While at UM, I taught undergraduate and Ph.D. classes in psychology and MSW and Ph.D. classes in social work. In psychology, this included a capstone undergraduate psychology major course on self and motivation (Psych 487), and the Ph.D. class in research methods for social psychology. In social work, these included a four-course sequence on preventive intervention, jointly listed in social work, psychology, and sociology and the core master's level social work class on the foundations of psychology (Human Differences, Social Relationships, Well-Being, and Change through the Life Course SW 500).

Part 2: We can't escape our cultural heritage, and yet it's more malleable than you might think. It's there in everything we do and say -- from the boardroom tables of big business to conversations with your GP. How are scientists getting inside our cultural mindsets to study them?
