

Honestly, snaking the shower drain used to be my absolute nightmare. There is nothing worse than pulling out those slimy clumps of hair weeks after they've accumulated.

I was a bit skeptical about the suction cups actually holding on a wet surface, but they stick surprisingly well as long as I don't accidentally kick it. It catches pretty much everything, which is a huge relief. The only minor downside is that because it works so well, you do have to wipe the hair off it after every shower, otherwise the water starts to drain a little slower. But honestly, that takes two seconds and beats calling a plumber any day.

Anyway, if anyone wants it, here is what I bought: [Shower Drain Hair Catcher]