

— Halfway Point —

Behold, mortals!

We have crossed through the fabled threshold known as “halfway there.”

This feat required little more than your love for Sword & Sorcery and the assorted deals made with those entities who slither through the shadows of our minds. I questioned not our ability to reach this point, as I knew the strange webwork of lines both written and drawn that make up the heart of this proud publication are fueled by you and your unwavering devotion to these timeless tales and the spirit in which they are created.

Our quest is not yet complete, as even greater heights await us! Soon, we shall fully fund this grand endeavor, and within its pages, you will find stories that both stun and terrify, with art that only true visionaries dare to craft.

On this eve of our triumph, I commend those who have already sung my praises, but to the rest of you I say: raise your voices, sound your gongs, squawk your tweettoks, and smash your facespaces as you spread the word of our might to all within view or earshot of your unwavering devotion to these stories. Let not one within your sphere of influence go unaware of the glory of my peerless publication!

Go forth, mortal acolytes! Loosen thy tongues and raise thy voices in praise of the glories of Sword & Sorcery!

So Sayeth the Skull!

— Merch —

Rejoice, mortals!

For now, you may bear the mark of my greatness upon your very bodies! Yes, T-shirts and adhesive paper decals crafted in the likeness of my timeless visage are now available for your personal adornment!

Picture it: your once mundane and drab rags replaced by cloth and paper emblazoned with sigils that have met my sought-after approval as these iconic images grace your meager belongings whilst you stride forth to proclaim your allegiance to Sword & Sorcery!

Let none mistake your loyalty as you bedeck yourselves in these enchanted garments and shaped bits of sticky paper art. Be swift though, for these relics of my greatness are in limited supply, and those who are foolish enough to let this opportunity slip through their grasp shall be mocked relentlessly by those more loyal than thee.

So Sayeth the Skull!

— Funded #13 —

Behold, mortals!

Bask in my glory as the moment of triumph is upon us.

We have funded another grand undertaking! Your devotion, love for the timeless tales of Sword & Sorcery, and boundless adoration to the Skull who is without equal, has brought us glorious victory!

I never doubted this outcome, for your loyalty was the fuel that powered our quest. The words and images within this sacred publication will now spring forth, ready to ignite your imagination as they delight, stun, terrify, and inspire with the very spirit of adventure!

To those who stood by my side, who spread the word and sounded the chimes of summoning, my skull cracks in a grin of satisfaction at your efforts! But let not your cries fade into the ether like the mewling of milk-fat kittens. Continue to ring your gongs, to squawk your tweettoks, to smash your facespaces! Let every soul within your reach know of our triumph and the glory that now awaits them within these pages.

We have only just begun! The stories and art within will now see the light of day, and you, loyal acolytes, shall be the first to bask in their glory. Spread the word far and wide as we ride on to the next adventure, festooned once more with glorious purpose!

Do all this and more with grim cheer!

So Sayeth the Skull!