

(word processor parameters LM=1, RM=70, TM=2, BM=2)

Taken from KeelyNet BBS (214) 324-3501
Sponsored by Vanguard Sciences
PO BOX 1031
Mesquite, TX 75150

Foo Fighters and the Kugleblitz
by Al Pinto
taken from ParaNet
additional material by Vanguard

We, because of the infinitesimal size of the Universe, can quite easily say that the probability of the Earth being the only planet inhabited by intelligent beings is not logical. However, while there is research going on today in order to prove the existence of extraterrestrial intelligence (SETI) by listening in on the radio waves of space, I wonder; have we been contacted already? Is there something in the UFO phenomenon that proves the existence of extraterrestrials? Let's look at the facts.

Thousands of people from all around the world report the sightings of strange aerial phenomenon every year. It has been going on for many years, but not as much as from 1947 to present. Due to the fact that so many people have seen objects in the sky that they can't identify, we could at least admit that there is sufficient reason to believe that UFO's exist. We can't scientifically prove their existence just based on that fact but we can't ignore it either. So our next logical step would be to get more data.

Is the origin of all UFO's extraterrestrial? Is there a possibility that at least some may come from Earth and Earth technology? The answer to that question is yes, some are Earth originated. People can easily mistake a plane or helicopter flying at night as a UFO and have already. Some even thought that Venus was one. However, while most UFO's could be explained, there are an astonishing number of reports that cannot. They include reports from people such as police chiefs, scientists, pilots, and most interestingly, astronauts. There is plenty of information publically available that is reputable about details of their encounters.

Our next step should be to concentrate on these unexplainable sightings. Out of these, is it still possible that the objects could come from Earth? Dr. Renato Vesco thought so. In his book "Intercept UFO," he writes about his experience and information with Nazi Germany. I am going to include a paper written by him but first let me tell you his credentials.

Renato Vesco is a fully liscensed aircraft engineer and a specialist in aerospace and ramjet developements. He attended the University of Rome and, before WWII, studied at the German Institute for Aerial Developement. During the war, Vesco worked with the Germans at the Fiat Lake Garda secret installations in Italy. In the 1960's, he worked for the Italian Air Ministry of Defense as an undercover technical agent, investigating the UFO mystery.

Page 1

He writes:

"On November 27, 1944, a B-27 of the United States Air Force, returning from a raid on Speyer, West Germany, encountered a huge, orange colored light moving upward at an estimated speed of 500 MPH. When the pilots reported, sector radar had reported negatively, because nothing had registered on the screen.

But the object seen by the returning bomber was only the first of numerous others spotted by American pilots over wartime Germany and promptly baptized 'foo-fighters.'

Fighter pilots Falls and Backer, of the 415th Squadron, reported such an encounter a month later forcing the Air Force to admit that such objects might exist. Later encounters with foo fighters led experts to assume they were German inventions of a new order employed to baffle radar.

How close they came to the truth, they learned only when the war was over and Allied Intelligence teams moved into the secret Nazi plants. The foo-fighters seen by American pilots were only a minor demonstration, a fraction of a vast variety of methods used to confuse radar and interrupt electro magnetic currents.

Work on the German anti-radar Feurball, or fireball, had been speeded up during the fall of 1944 at a Luftwaffe experimental center near Oberammergau, Bavaria. There, and at the aeronautical establishment at Weiner Neustadt, the first fireballs were produced. Later, when the Russians moved closer to Austria, the workshops producing the fireballs were moved to the Black Forest.

Fast and remote controlled, the fireballs, equipped with klystron tubes operating on the same frequency as Allied radar, which could eliminate the blips from radar screens. This allowed them to remain practically invisible to ground control.

The Nazi Feurball failed to interfere with the Allied air offensive. The foo fighters had been launched too late and could no longer change the course of events, but in themselves they were significant not only because they were the outcome of a technical evolution which could have led to more dangerous weapons, but also because they showed that Nazi technology had moved in a direction far beyond anything expected by Allied Intelligence.

As the fall of Germany approached, the Nazi Leaders reverted to an ambitious project created by Gauleiter Franz Hofer who had become high commissioner for the Italian Tyrol and the Southern Alps. The project foresaw setting up an incredible fortress in the mountains, including parts of Italy, Austria and Bavaria.

Hofer submitted his plan to Hitler's aide, Martin Bormann in November 1944, having prepared for this moment back in 1938 when Nazi agents carefully mapped all mountain passes, caves, bridges, highways, and located sights for underground factories, munitions dumps, arms and food caches. To complete work on this fortress, Hofer demanded a slave labor force of a quarter of a million, to be composed of 70% Austrian workers and 30% men of the Tyrolese home guard.

Page 2

So-called U-Plants were to be set up underground as gigantic workshops and launching pads for the secret weapons which were to turn the tide of the war in favor of the Nazis.

Among these were some 74 tunnels along Lake Garda, in Northern Italy, which were to be adapted and transformed into a vast assembly plant by FIAT of Turin in close collaboration with the department of Minister Albert Speer. Seven other tunnels along Lake Garda, near Limone, were to produce several weapons tested at the Hermann Goering Institute of Riva del Garda.

According to the archives of the German High Command and of the Allied Combined Intelligence Objectives Sub-Committee, other plants in vital areas of Central Germany, code named M-Werke, were to produce powerful missiles such as the giant A.9/A.10 destined to destroy New York and Washington. But most important was the Alpine area, for it was from there that the supreme weapons were to come.

This report, never released by the Allies, was made by a French diplomat. It was forwarded to Free French Intelligence Headquarters at Algiers. The top secret report referred to the blue clouds as something approaching anti-aircraft projectiles based on the grisou (fire damp) gas found in mines, and which had been successfully tried against other bombers over Lake Garda.

The French report was intercepted by Italian agents and deciphered at SID (Italian Counter-Intelligence) Headquarters at Castiglione della Stiviere. The message was later captured by a military intelligence team operating for the eighth Army in Italy.

The contents of the message was no novelty to the Allies.

Already, some time ago, shortly after the bombing of Dresden, British and American intelligence had obtained a brief account concerning the use of some such weapon used against a group of twelve American bombers.

That message, which came from an agent in Switzerland attached to Allen Dulle's team, also stated the attacker had been

"a strange hemispherical object which flew at fantastic speeds and destroyed the bombers without using firearms."

Then, after the German surrender in May, 1945, a team of British agents, investigating the files of some of the underground factories in the Black Forest, discovered that a large number of documents concerned 'important experiments made with LIQUID OXYGEN for new turbine engines capable of developing extraordinary power.'

Other documents described the use of 'gaseous explosives' which had been originally tested in Austria in 1936. Their existence was later confirmed by the ALSOS Mission and by Dr. Hans Friedrich Gold, of the Laboratory for Aeronautical Research at Volkenrode. The ejection of gas explosives had been part of the program tackled by researchers on Lake Garda and later tested with success by the circular flying object against Allied bombers. This object, in German military files, already had an operational name:

'Round Lightning' (Kugelblitz).

Page 3

Long and close observation between the special Air Research Corps of the SS, Austrian research centers in Vienna, the Hermann Goering Works and the vast complex of underground G-Works had previously produced amazing improvement on the fireball or foo-fighter which, despite it's anti-radar effectiveness, remained comparatively harmless. But by combining the principle of the aircraft with a round, symmetrical plane with direct gyroscopic stabilization, employing an ejector-gun using grisou and a gelatinous organic/mettalic fuel for a total reaction turbine, adding remote control, vehicle take off, infrared seeking equipment and electrostatic firing systems, the harmless fireball became the lethal Kugelblitz!

Believe me, I can prove what I say (Vesco). The Kugelblitz, to be on the safe side, employed, in addition to it's electrostatic firing system, a similar system based on short waves and built by the Patent Verwertungs Gesellschaft of Salzburg, Austria. The whole thing formed one compact, round mass which had absolutely nothing in common with any flying object ever produced before.

In documents found by British Intelligence teams and submitted to the British Intelligence Objectives Sub-Committee - documents which I have been able to study - these and many other details are known. They can be found in the Sub-Committee's Final Report Number 61 on the 'Weapons Section of the L.F.A., Volkenrode.'

Kugelblitz, together with it's "younger brothers of the fireball, lens-shaped bomb and other weapons, began the real history of the UFO's. In itself, it was a second generation fireball.

The 'round lightning' weapon, the incredibly fast and mysterious disk-shaped craft that had been rumored and sighted in action, was used only once. As the Allied forces crossed the Rhine, the only craft of it's type was destroyed by the SS on instructions from Berlin, to prevent it's capture. But ever since, due to the severe censorship imposed by 'T' force of the British Army in Germany, and later, thanks to the complete blackout imposed by London, nothing more was heard of "Round Lightning."

I know that agents of the 'T' force camp at Bad Gandersheim closely examined the documents found in the G-Works, documents which had been elaborated by the technical general staff of the SS and by technical control of the Henshel and Zeppelin works.

These documents concern the propulsion unit of the Kugelblitz prototype built by the Kreislaufbetrieb Motor D.W. in 1943 for the F.F.K.F. (Forschungsinstitut for Kraftfhart and Fahzeugmotoren) at Stuttgart-Untertuerkheim and perfected by Professors Kamm and Ernst.

The British called this motor an 'oxygen recycle system.' It was later abandoned in favor of the Walter turbine, powered by hydrogen peroxide. The documents found discussed the possibility of using both systems in a compound-type propulsion unit.

To these basic facts, I must add: A mass of documents and equipment were taken by British 'T' teams to Bedford and then to Canada and Australia.

Page 4

In a certain sense, the British were more intelligent than the Americans, for they permitted German scientists to complete their work in Germany on the sight where they had worked all through the war - only, of course, under close supervision. This happened at Darmstadt and Goettingen.

Later on, these installations were dismantled and shipped to Britain. The Transport Service of the British Ministry of Aviation discreetly shipped the scientists and documents to Britain, Canada and Australia, in successive phases. Lists of the scientists to be sent overseas had been compiled in the spring of 1944 by the B.I.O.S. and formed separate and specialized teams.

One such team, composed of Proffessor Ben Lockspeiser and W.J. Richards, Dr. S.H. Hollingdale and C aptain A.D. Green, handled 'advanced projects, missiles, jet and turbine craft.'

Another, including T.A. Taylor and M.A. Wheeler, investigated

German advances in the field of Thermo-refraction. Another team, which obtained the services of Dr. Ernst Westermann, former director of the F.D.R.P. Institutes of Speyer and Saarbrücken, concentrated on the fireball projects.

The then Ministry of Aircraft Production, similar to the German wartime Jaegerstab, ceased to exist officially on March 31, 1946, and became part of the Ministry of Supply.

In the years that followed, these teams, and especially the experts headed by Professor Lockspeiser, worked on a multitude of German projects, adapting these to their own experiments in the field of 'suction' wings and on the work of two German scientists during the war, Professors Prandtl and Busemann, to develop a high speed fighter in which the air intake along the wings was discharged through a half-moon-shaped crescent along the fuselage in order to both drive and support the vehicle at high speeds.

This research comes to mind when one remembers the incident of January 3, 1956. A Cessna, employed on a job of aerial photography near Pasadena, encountered three circular flying objects which circled it at a speed of 1600 mph and at a distance of two miles. One of these objects, in suddenly breaking away from the formation, gave off a long, vaporous trail as it sped through a cumulous cloud, cutting the cloud in two.

'Exactly as if it had sucked up the cloud., ' the Cessna pilot exclaimed later.

Back in 1946, the British Broadcasting Corporation announced that Britain 'would soon have aircraft capable of speeds well over 1000 mph, that, according to some experts, such craft had already been built and that, in the near future, they could circumnavigate the globe several times because they needed only fuel for take off and landing..'

Other British sources mentioned aircraft capable of speeds of several thousand miles an hour.

More than twenty years have passed since the otherwise so-eminently-careful BBC boasted of 'Britain's planes of the future,' and officially these aircraft still remain little more than a dream. And yet, did not Ben Lockspeiser, the man who was in charge of the most responsible 'T' teams, declare that 'such craft would need no fuel?' Did he not imply that such craft would gain their own propellant from the atmosphere by suction and expulsion?

Page 5

On June 26, 1953, an intensely luminous flying object majestically crossed the night sky of Albacete, Spain, at an altitude of 60 miles.

In Britain, scientific papers produced by members of the 'T' teams showed suggestive titles such as 'Boundary Layer Flow Over a Permeable Surface Through Which Suction is Applied' (J.H. Preston), 'The Aerodynamics of Porous Sheets' by G.J. Taylor, and Pankhurst's Aerofoil Catalogue.

In 1959, aeronautical engineer N.S. Currey wrote: 'Canada today must be counted among the most advanced aeronautical powers in the world', and added cautiously, 'This refers above all to the field of jet propulsion.'

The Canadian Department of Mines and the Technical Surveys

Mapping Branch reserved a vast area - 125,000 square miles - for production of experimental aircraft. This was one of the decisions reached by the committees of the Commonwealth Conference on Aeronautical Research. This desolate, heavily wooded and mountainous region between British Columbia and Alberta, with the Peace River district as its Northern frontier and Washington State to the South, was an ideal location - few and easily controlled roads, few settlements, few railroads, but good communications in the north and the south via the trunk line from Prince George to Edmonton and that from Vancouver to the United States border, and only one major highway, to Alaska.

Britain already had considerable wartime experience in this sort of enterprise. In 1942, at the height of the German raids, the RAF had set up five secret airports in the very heart of the New Forest, in Hampshire.

The big thing about these installations was the fact that they included complete industrial plants, decentralizing major groups essential for war production. They were called 'shade workshops.' The Germans, too, had much experience in this field. One of their major plants at Volkenrode resisted all attempts at aerial identification throughout the war.

Neither the British nor the Americans, on an official level, saw eye to eye in scientific matters at the close of the war against Germany and afterward.

The United States' refusal to share atomic secrets with Britain was never quite forgotten in Whitehall, and Britain set out to prove, with Canada, that she was well able to produce her own fission bomb. If Congress steadfastly accused the British of giving little or nothing in return for information, the British felt they had been mistrusted and severely neglected.

They preferred to go ahead with their plans in Canada.

The fact that the area has been photographed again and again by high altitude reconnaissance planes, both U.S. and Russian, does not perturb the Canadian or British authorities. The plants and saucer ports are underground, hidden in primeval forests of Columbia.

Page 6

The question immediately arises: Why have not Britain and Canada made such craft available to their other partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization?

I (Vesco) believe there may be many answers to such a question, but one of the main points is this: Lack of confidence and fear of being exploited remain rife among the nations, as they are among people. And why should not Britain and her Commonwealth partner retain one major trump card which, one day, may become invaluable? The pooling of scientific secrets is rarely entirely sincere.

All the evidence, all the knowhow of British scientists before and during the last war, combined with the astounding progress in propulsion and the discoveries in suction aircraft of the Germans, based on 18 years of research into the most secret documents of the past war, have convinced me of one thing :

The flying saucers do not come from space.
They come from a few hundred miles outside the United States.
They mean no harm, and Washington knows this.
Hence the long standing order to all U.S. Air Force pilots:

Intercept--but do not fire upon."

This article, which appeared in Argosy Magazine in August, 1969, is reprinted above in its entirety. It is important because it is one of the few reports that goes into detail about the revolutionary technical advancements made by the Nazis in the field of aeronautical research.

Unfortunately, Vesco doesn't offer any real substantiation for the existence of the Kugelblitz, which is the crux of his subject. However, in his book "Intercept, UFO," he tells us that the Kugelblitz was indeed tested some time in February, 1945 over the great underground complex at Kahla, in Thuringia. Both the Kugelblitz and the Feurball were then destroyed by the retreating S.S.

So, could this story be considered fact? We have to take into consideration a number of issues. First and foremost, there is the Nazi's. Could they have been developing craft of such advancement?

History has it that not only were they at war, which required much in the way of manpower, but they took on incredible projects such as constructing huge underground complexes at Nordhausen in the Harz mountains, Pennemunde and others. They also had their Naval Vessals provide support for a very detailed study of the Antarctic in which they were alleged to have been building underground bases there as well.

General Heinrich Himmler, the Reichsfuhrer as his S.S. men would call him, was quite frankly, a madman. He believed in obedience, controlled breeding and vivisection of humans. He believed in biological mutation and what could be produced with it. He used the slaves for his work force, as well as specimens for research.

Let's discuss this possibility more in the message boards in Paranet and the UFO echos. I am starting to get quite tired of the theory that UFO's and related matters, are extraterrestrial.

It is being shoved down our throats by figures like "Falcon" and "Condor" as well as articles in Paranet like MUGGER.DOC and PICNIC2.DOC. As a matter of fact, that is about all I hear anymore. It seems that since we want to hear about EBE's, the so-called, Intelligence Community, is giving us just what we want to hear.

I call on each and every person in the UFO community to research, in depth, HUMAN history. In particular, great scientists such as, Tesla and his experiments; Einstein's theories; Germany's secret weapons of the Second World War by R. Luser; the Philadelphia Experiment; Admiral Byrd's Project Highjump; books and periodicals about Nazi Germany and their interest in Antartica; then tell me that the possibility of technology (Earth Technology) could not possibly exist that could explain UFO's and the reason why it is above top secret.

-

This above fascinating document was obtained from Paranet and courteously furnished to Vanguard by A.J. McDonald.

-

Vanguard Sciences includes the following material to assist in further research and understanding of this phenomenon.

01/26/90

-

There is much available material which can be related to the above references to the Kugleblitz.

Among these, we can include plasma/ion field drive systems as developed from the Searle disc, the implosion/impansion effect of Viktor Schauberger, the German secret weapon referred to as the "whirlwind cannon", Tesla's "Mechanical Oscillator" and additional UFO reports over the past two decades.

We will deal with these individually in order to delineate a specific relationship for those who might not be familiar with such topics.

-

Plasm/ion field drive systems

Many sightings, especially those at night, report glowing or lighted objects which move at high speed. The Searle effect was produced by the spinning of a metal disc at very high speed which levitated momentarily, then took off under its' own power. The principle is directly related to the Biefeld/Brown effect and electrostatic repulsion. Voltages beginning at 50 KV and up when applied to two plates acting as capacitors will produce a thrust away from the planet. This thrust is due to an attractive force from the positive plate and a repellent force from the negative.

If the force is of sufficient electrical potential, a plasma (cloud of ionized gases) will be formed.

In the Searle case, it was believed that "free electrons" were centrifugally thrown towards the outside rim to accumulate the necessary potential for the lift.

The mention of the klystron in the early "Foo fighters" is again interesting in that it provides a clue to a superior means of creating the plasma levitation field locally.

Klystrons and magnetrons are used in microwave ovens to generate the intense, focussed local microwave field for cooking. This indicates that application to an appropriate surface at a specific frequency, might excite the surrounding air sufficiently to generate the plasma.

-

Implosion/Impansion

Viktor Schauberger discovered that all Nature operates with a dual principle, centripetence and centrifugence.

Centripetence

was called by Schauberger "Implosion or Impansion" to indicate a vortex action which condensed and cooled in the process.

Experiments carried out by Schauberger included a levitating effect which could be achieved with the use of water or air.

There are reports that during WWII, Schauberger actually assisted in the construction of a levitation craft under orders of the German military.

From "German Weapons and Secret Weapons of the 2nd WW and their Further Development" by Rudolf Lusar :

"The development, (relating to flying saucers) which had cost millions, was almost complete by the end of the war.

No doubt the existing models were destroyed, although the plant in Breslau, where Miethe worked, fell into the hands of the Russians, who removed all the material and technical personnel to Siberia, where further work on these "flying saucers" has been carried on with much success.
Schriever just managed to get out of Prague in time, Habermohl, on the other hand, must be in the Soviet Union.

The former German designer Miethe is in the USA and, as far as can be determined, is designing "flying saucers" for A.V. Roe & Co. The machines, which have been observed to date, have diameters in the order of 16, 42, 45 and 75 metres and they are supposed to develop a speed of up to 7,000 km/hour.

Already in 1952 "flying saucers" had been indisputably recognised over Korea and according to press reports, were also observed and reported during NATO manoeuvres in Alsace in the spring of 1954."

In a letter written by Schauburger to a friend, he gives further information from his direct experience with the German military :

"The "flying saucer" which was flight-tested on the 19th February 1945 near Prague and which attained a height of

Page 9

15,000 metres in 3 minutes and a horizontal speed of 2,200 km/hours, was constructed according to a Model 1 built at Mauthausen concentration camp in collaboration with the first-class engineers and stress-analysts ASSIGNED TO ME from the prisoners there.

It was only after the end of the war that I came to hear, through one of the workers UNDER MY DIRECTION, a Czech, THAT FURTHER INTENSIVE DEVELOPMENT WAS IN PROGRESS: however, there was no answer to my enquiry.

From what I understand, just before the end of the war, the machine is SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED on Keitel's orders. That's the last I heard of it.

In this affair, several armament specialists were also involved who appeared at the works in Prague, shortly before my return to Vienna, and asked that I DEMONSTRATE the fundamental basis of it: The CREATION OF AN ATOMIC LOW-PRESSURE ZONE, which DEVELOPS IN SECONDS when either AIR or WATER IS CAUSED TO MOVE RADIALY AND AXIALLY under conditions of a FALLING TEMPERATURE GRADIENT."

This principle is without doubt to my mind, the "suction craft" referred in the previous Vesco article.

-

The "Whirlwind Cannon"

There are reports of another fantastic secret weapon which was constructed and used during WWII. This weapon was said to use air as its "bullet" and could knock down a brick wall at a range of several miles. On the KeelyNet board (214) 324-3501, there is a file VORTXGUN.ZIP (or .ASC if using a non-IBM system) which gives a short description of work done in the US on vortex principles. Personal discussions I have had with various informed researchers indicates that a plasma weapon using vortex principles is currently in research if not already here.

Tesla's Mechanical Oscillator

Another device invented by Tesla was the Mechanical Oscillator which compressed air until the oxygen became a liquid. It was built in the form of an air cylinder and contained several chambers, each of which successively cools the air until it becomes liquid. Tesla stated that the device was highly efficient and could be used as a power generating system if magnets were attached to the oscillating pistons.

Refer to the above comments about "oxygen recycle system" and 'important experiments made with LIQUID OXYGEN for new turbine engines capable of developing extraordinary power.'

Page 10

UFO Reports

Speed measurements of UFO's made with the use of radar have been reported up to 5,000 MPH. Others move so fast that speeds can only be calculated by using time over distance between related sightings indicates speeds up to 12,000 MPH.

Glowing spheres, cylinders and lens-shaped objects (most frequent) are the forms which UFO's tend to take. The use of Plasma as a propulsion method would obviate aerodynamic requirements up to certain speeds since the plasma would cut through the atmosphere like a hot knife through butter.

However, above certain critical speeds, dependent on the shape of the craft, the plasma would not fully protect against wind resistance. This would justify the use of the "frisbee" lens shape most commonly seen. In addition, gyroscopic stabilization would further assist navigation.

-

As you can see, the Vesco article opens many cans of worms.

If the Germans combined the Schauburger Implosion principle (vortex "whirlwind") with the grisou (fire damp gas) and added the Klystron exciter for the plasma drive system, then the Kugleblitz is indeed possible.

In addition, another type of drive could be achieved by using Tesla principles (available years before WWII) for such turbines driven by liquid oxygen produced by Tesla Mechanical Oscillators.

-

We of Vanguard Sciences (214) 324-8741 and KeelyNet wish to thank Mr. Al Pinto and Mr. A.J. McDonald for bringing this information to our attention that we may contribute and pass it along.

If we can be of service, please contact at the above address, phone or BBS number. Thank you.

-

FINIS

Page 11

(word processor parameters LM=1, RM=70, TM=2, BM=2)

Taken from KeelyNet BBS (214) 324-3501
Sponsored by Vanguard Sciences
PO BOX 1031
Mesquite, TX 75150
March 30, 1990

Courteously contributed to KeelyNet by Lance Oliver

UFO's. Alien or Man Made
By
Al Pinto

First, I would like to introduce myself. I am not an airplane pilot. I am not an astronaut, physicist, scientist, pscychologist, or any other so called "accepted" authority on UFO's. I am however an ex-Navy Petty Officer with a good amount of observation experience. I am also someone who is very interested in the phenomenon. I have researched this subject for quite a while now, because of what it might mean to us if the "truth" leaked out. Let me tell you that there is a lot more to UFO's than you may think.

The governments of the world have been covering up everything that has to do with UFO's. Why? It may be they feel that the sheer thought of an "alien" culture infiltrating our world would cause mass hysteria.

When I was a teenager living in North Bergen, NJ (a town across the Hudson River, directly across from NYC) hundreds of people saw what appeared to be a flying disk land in what was then called Hudson County Park (now named Braddock Park after James J. Braddock, the boxer). It was said to have blown out windows in a high rise named the "Stonehenge". The only thing ever heard about it was a small blurb in the local newspaper called the Dispatch.

I have been interested in the phenomenon ever since. The authorities must have had one hell of a time suppressing that sighting but, apparently were very succesful. Again I ask, why?

Maybe these craft are some secret government project. There is a lot of evidence indicating this which dates back to WWII. There is a report by Marshall Yarrow, then the Reuters special correspondant to Supreme H.Q. in liberated Paris. This article was published in the South Wales Argus on December 13, 1944. It stated,

"The Germans have produced a 'secret' weapon in keeping with the Christmas season. The new device, which is apparently an air defense weapon, and resembles the glass balls that adorn Christmas trees. They have been seen hanging in the air over German territory, sometimes singly, sometimes in clusters. They are colored silver and are appaently transparent."

Another article regarding the German's secret craft was released by the Associated Press in the New York Herald Tribune dated January 2, 1945. It said:

into "Now, it seems, the Nazis have thrown something new the night skies over Germany. It is the weird, mysterious 'Foo Fighter' balls which race alongside the wings of fighters flying intruder missions over Germany.
Pilots have been encountering this eerie eapon for more than a month in their night flights. No one apparently knows what this sky weapon is. The balls of fire appear suddenly and accompany the planes for miles. They seem to be radio controlled from the ground, so official intelligence reports reveal..."

I recently read a paper by Dr. Renato Vesco in which he claims that the "Foo Fighter" actually existed. It was originally called the "Feurball" and that it was first built at an aeronautical establishment in Weiner Neustatt, with the help of the Flugfunk Forschungsanstalt of Oberpfaffenhoffen (FFO). According to Vesco, the craft was a flat, circular flying machine, powered by a special turbojet engine, which was used by the Germans during the end of the war.

Vesco also claims that the basic principles of the "Feurball" were later applied to a much larger craft called the "Kugelblitz" or Ball Lightning Fighter. This craft, which was rumored to be a revolutionary kind of supersonic aircraft - was sucesfully conducted over the underground complex of Kahla, in Thuringia, sometime during February of 1945.

By 1975, Luftfhardt International was stating that a WWII Flugkapitan Rudolph Schriever had died and found among his papers were the incomplete notes for a large flying saucer, a series of rough sketches of the machine, and several newspaper clippings of himself and his alleged flying saucer. Luftfahrt also pointed out that Schriever, up until his death, had been convinced that the UFO sightings since the end of the war were proof that his original ideas had been taken further with successful results.

Again I wonder. Is there something more to this? Where did this technology go?

In May of 1978, at Stand 111 in a scientific exhibition in the Hanover Messe Hall, some people were giving out a paper entitled the "Brisant". The paper contained two seemingly unrelated articles:

1. The scientific future of the Antarctic.
2. Germany's WWII flying saucers

The flying saucer spoke of the information I already had presented to you. The article also included detailed drawings of a typical WWII flying disk, did not mention the designer's name, and claimed that the drawing was altered by the West German gov't to render it "safe" for publication.

According to the article, at the end of the war, some of the patents for this craft disappeared into secret Russian, American, and British files. The remainder of the files and most likely, the most important ones, went with the "missing" German scientists and S.S. men. By 1956, Captain Ed Ruppelt, then head of the U.S.A.F.'s Project Blue Book, wrote,

"When WWII ended, the Germans had several radical types of aircraft and guided missiles under development. The majority of these were in the most preliminary states, but they were the only known craft that could even approach the performances of the objects reported by UFO observers."

The article also states that in 1938, Hitler, anxious for a foothold in the Antarctic, sent an expedition commanded by Captain Alfred Richter to the coast due south of South Africa. Two seaplanes were launched from the deck of the carrier, Schwabenland, daily for three weeks. They had orders to fly back and forth across the territory which Norwegian explorers had named Queen Maud Land. The Germans had then made a far more thorough study of these region, finding vast areas that were free of ice.

They renamed the area "Neuschwabenland" and claimed it as part of the Third Reich. German ships and U-boats continued to operate in the South Atlantic Ocean, particularly between South Africa and the Antarctic, throughout WWII. Then, in March 1945, just before the end of the war, two German U-boats, U-530 and U-977, left from a port on the Baltic Sea.

Allegedly, they took with them members of the flying saucer research teams, the last of the most vital saucer components, the notes and drawings for the saucer, and the designs for gigantic underground complexes and living accommodations based on the underground factories of Nordhausen in the Harz mountains.

The U-boats allegedly unloaded all of this in Antarctica. Then, two months after the war, they mysteriously surfaced off the coast of Argentina where the crews were handed over to the American authorities, who interrogated them at length and then flew them all back to the United States and questioned the Captains of both U-boats for almost a year.

About a year after their capture, the United States launched the biggest operation ever known regarding the Antarctic. The purpose was to

"circumnavigate the 16,000 mile continent and map it thoroughly.."

"Brisant" felt it odd that Operation Highjump, as it was called, under the command of Adm. Richard E. Byrd, included 13 ships, 2 seaplane tenders, an aircraft carrier, 6 two engine R4D transports, 6 Martin PBM flying boats, 6 helicopters and a staggering 4000 men. That expedition became somewhat of a mystery.

It docked near the German claimed Neuschwabenland and split up into three separate task forces. Some reports claim that the mission was an enormous success. Other, mainly foreign, reports say that it was a complete disaster: that many of Byrd's men were lost on the first day, that at least four of his airplanes had disappeared, and that while the expedition had gone provisioned for 6 to 8 months, they had returned only after a few weeks.

According to "Brisant" Admiral Byrd told a reporter that it was "necessary for the USA to take defensive actions against enemy air fighters which come from the polar regions" and that in case of a new war the USA would be "attacked by fighters that are able to fly from one pole to the other with incredible speed."

Admiral Byrd was then ordered to undergo a secret cross examination and the US withdrew from the Antarctic for almost a decade.

Yes, I have to ask again. Why are the governments of Earth covering up on this UFO phenomenon? It may be because they have no choice right now. They are up against a much more technologically advanced society that might very well be a product of the Nazi's

and they can't do a thing about it.

It then becomes more apparent why they do not want us to know.

The masses would not only panic but would quite probably go berserk! There are still many people alive today who experienced the terror of Nazi Germany. Imagine how they would feel if they found out that not only is Naziism still alive but, they command power that no government can stop.

There is still other information that I've come across which I am in the process of researching at this point. It regards the science of Cybornetics. I became interested in this because the Nazi's did many "experiments" with humans. Many of these experiments are deemed to be highly unethical by the medical profession. So strange in fact that results of these tests cannot be released or even used for a good purpose because of the way the tests were conducted. More on this some other time but it may be possible that these "little people" are cyborgs. Don't laugh.
What
I have read so far just might support this theory.

There are a few problems with all of this. What about the sightings that took place before WWII? What about Lear's report that we are dealing with Aliens, Extraterrestrials from another world? Why bother with the Space Shuttle and rockets if the technology exists to build saucers? None of it truly makes sense.
That is the problem. We have only questions and not enough answers
but, somebody knows. Do you?

Al Pinto

Vanguard Note

Mr. Peter Kelly informed us of a book entitled "Genesis" which has been "removed" from circulation.

Written by W. A. Harbinson and published by Dell Publishing Co., Inc.
1 Dag Hammarskjold Plaza
New York, NY 10017

copyright 1980 and 1982 by W. A. Harbinson.

ISBN : 0-440-12832-3

Another slightly different version of the book was published in Great Britain by Corgi Books.

It is apparent from Mr. Pinto's paper that he is using and possibly researching "Genesis" for his primary source. The Cyborgs mentioned in his article are most notably mentioned in

"Genesis" in addition to the abduction of a tribe of Paraguayan

Indians from the Ache tribe who have many of the characteristics found in UFO contact cases.

Through the efforts of Chuck Henderson, Vanguard Secretary, we have managed to secure a copy of the book.

The intriguing point is that the book is based on certain facts which have come to light since WWII.

Points of interest as taken from Mr. Harbinsons bibliography (in a science fiction novel???) included the following:

1) A highly technical but little-known book called "Intercettateli Senza Sparare" claims that the "Foo Fighter" actually existed, that it was originally called the Feurball, and that it was first constructed at the aeronautical establishment at Wiener Neustadt. Used by the Germans during the closing stages of the War both as an anti-radar device and as a "psychological" weapon against Allied pilots.

Vesco says "The fiery halo around the Feurball perimeter was caused by a very rich fuel mixture in addition to the chemical additives that interrupted the flow of electricity by over-ionizing the atmosphere in the vicinity of the plane, generally around the wing tips or tail surfaces, subjecting the H2S radar on the plane to the action of powerful electrostatic fields and electromagnetic impulses."

2) Robert Ley, Minister for Labor in Nazi Germany in April 1945, excitedly told Albert Speer that German scientists had invented a "death ray" (possibly a laser weapon).

Captain Heinze Schaeffer, captain of the U-977 submarine (suspected taking Hitler and and Martin Bormann to Patagonia, then on to a secret Nazi base in the Antartic), stated in his book "U-boat 977" that in April 1945 an S.S. associate had offered him a demonstration of a so-called "death ray". Schaeffer had to decline the offer in order to make his famous last voyage before the final German downfall.

We recommend that you do your best to acquire a copy of "Genesis"
to get a better handle on this topic. Try half-price or old bookstores. If you find a stash, we would be interested in buying some copies to freely distribute to various parties of our acquaintance who might further expand our collective knowledge on this subject.

Thank you for you interest and contributions.

UFO's and the Occult Reich

by TAL

From: Nevada Aerial Research Newsletter

P.O. Box 1701 Rock Springs Drive

Las Vegas, Nevada 89128

.
Many civilizations with "flying saucers" exist, and are hidden inside this planet. Beings which generate out of their own thought, various craft are among us. There are also the UFO craft that are built by surface cultures. All these are linked together in various ways. Most all of these are OCCULT (hidden)...and most are "messengers of deception". In 1867, Wentworth Little founded the English Rosicrucian Society. He was in contact with the German Rosicrucians. Little recruited his followers, up to 144 people, from the ranks of the higher-ranking "Freemasons". One of his disciples was Bulwer Lytton, who was a learned man celebrated throughout the world for his novel "The Last Days of Pompeii". He also wrote "The Coming Race" (Zanconi) which featured a mystical pre-Nazi group in Germany. This Berlin group called itself the "luminous lodge", or "Vril Society" Vril (like the force) has enormous energy potential. The book describes a race of men physically far in advance of surface humans. They have acquired powers over themselves and over all material objects. They lived in caves and would emerge to reign over the surface world. The most prominent member of the Vril Society was Karl Haushofer, a close confidant of Hitler, Hess and Rosenberg, who all belonged to the Thule Society (Thule Gesellschaft) that was founded in Munich in 1918. Thule was a neo-Gnostic racist group, which became a rallying front for the societal roots of Nazi thought. The chief architect of the Thule group was Baron Rudolf von Sebottendorff (Rudolf Glauer) who had direct contact with the Dervish Orders and knew a great deal about Islamic mysticism, particularly Sufism in all its aspects. He also had contact with Herman Pohl, leader of the German Order

Walwater of the Holy Grail. Nazi occultism was a mixture of influences and a host of interrelated secret societies, including the

Bavarian Illuminati, the Knights Templar, the Teutonic Knights, the Holy Vehm, the Golden Dawn, the Rosy-Cross, the Vril

Society, the German Order and its offshoot, the Thule Society.

Thule is known as the capital of Hyperborea, in the polar regions.

Also known as "Ultima Thule", it was the gateway to other worlds. It was known to serve as both a place to leave the earth and a place on the rim of the opening to the "hollow earth".

It is interesting to note that the major powers of the earth have microwave stations set up in the area, broadcasting ELF waves on brain-wave frequencies. Tradition has it that hyperboreans were in contact with various "alien cultures". War supposedly broke out between the Hyperboreans and other civilizations (atomic war). Descendants of the Thule caste (Celts) emigrated elsewhere to other areas of the planet. They colonized these areas, driven by "memory chromosomes" inherited from their space-traveling ancestors. These star seed people are mostly of Celtic origin (Basques, Irish, English, Norsemen, Icelanders, Bretons, Spaniards and Portuguese) which, strangely enough, make up the largest percentage of RH-NEGATIVE blood types. Current neo-Nazis are allegedly trying to locate and control these people.

Apparently, most contactees have RH- blood type. Are UFO cultures tracking their own "cross-breeds"?

The Grand Lodge of Vril was seeking to re-unite the ancient Aryan traditions and to make contact with the original super-human "luminous race" and to make an alliance with beings who have secret sanctuaries hidden inside the planet. The book "UFOs

- NAZI SECRET WEAPON?" by Mattern-Friedrich brings out some interesting information. It seems that Victor Schaubert (1885-1958) invented a number of "flying disks" for the Nazis between 1938 and 1945. He lived in the United States after the war, where he was reported to be working on a top secret UFO project in Texas for the US Government. Reports of aryan looking saucer pilots are many. Long haired blond folks that speak German. It is interesting to note that the so-called "venusian" saucer

design of contactees all look like German saucer designs.

The Thule Society is still alive in the minds of neo-Nazi (Fourth Reich) occultists. There is a booklet going around that reports to be the secret log of Admiral Richard Byrd. In 1978, copies were sent out by the Hollow Earth Research Society in Ontario, Canada. Ivan Boyes, its director, claims that "after the war, the allies discovered that over 2,000 scientists from Germany and Italy had vanished along with almost a million people to the Land beyond the pole. This is apparently what Admiral Byrd's expedition was all about. To hunt them down. The domain of the Arianni. The "Flugelrads" (wingwheels) were noted in the secret log as being sent to the surface world to investigate the first nuclear explosions. These were the model T's of the German saucer design. Do we have a myth in the making? So ... Adm.

Byrd goes back and tells the pentagon and the President what he has seen. They order him to be silent.

It seems that the inner earth cavern civilizations and the lands inside the earth have been a part of the occult/military secret for a long time.