

Preparing for Final Exams and Spring Quarter in a Remote Learning Environment

With the need to practice social distancing for the foreseeable future, it is important that the campus prepare our student community for modifications in how we will be providing them with a high quality education.

It is important to note that for questions about practices specific to a given course, your instructor is the final authority, so all questions should be directed to them.

Final Exams

With final exams quickly approaching, instructors may need to be creative in how they administer their final exam. This may mean that instead of a traditional exam, alternative methods may be utilized including Canvas quizzes, video presentations, or take-home exams.

Below are student instructions for exams that are to be administered using Respondus or Examity. We also want to make you aware that while Respondus and Examity are typically paid services, students will not be charged for using these services.

Spring Quarter Instruction

In Spring Quarter, the majority of courses will be delivered in a remote format. Again, instructors may implement a variety of methods to deliver course content and facilitate student engagement. Below are instructions for how to utilize YuJa and Zoom, two common tools that will be used by instructors. Additionally, you can obtain a Zoom Pro account to set up study groups with your peers.

- If your class is using YuJa: Access videos through Canvas (if your class is using Canvas) or the links provided by your instructors
- If your class is using Zoom: Instructors will provide you with an unique link for course Zoom meetings.

In these trying times, we appreciate the flexibility of our student body. As mentioned, if you have questions or concerns about a particular course, please contact your instructor, who will be able to provide the answer or connect you with individuals on campus who are able to provide assistance.
