

Part One - The Game of Kings: A Hypothetical Strategy for the Scattered

To those with eyes to see and ears to hear,

Throughout history, the world has been controlled by those who move in the shadows—men who swear loyalty not to truth, justice, or peace, but to an agenda rooted in deception, domination, and destruction. They do not operate by the laws they impose on others. Their oaths are not to their countries, nor to the people they claim to serve, but to a greater, darker force.

Before we proceed, let us examine the Jesuit Extreme Oath, which some of our greatest enemies have taken in secret. This oath is not spoken of openly, yet it has shaped the events of history behind the scenes.

Understanding Our Enemy: Jesuit Extreme Oath (Word for Word)

"I do further declare, that I will help, assist, and advise all or any of His Holiness' agents in any place where I shall be, in Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Ireland, or America, or in any other kingdom or territory where I shall come, and do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestant or Liberal doctrines and to destroy all their pretended powers, regal or otherwise.

"I do further promise and declare, that notwithstanding I am dispensed with, to assume my religion heretical, for the propagation of the Mother Church's interest, to keep secret and private all her agents' counsels from time to time, as they may entrust me, and not divulge, directly or indirectly, by word, writing, or circumstance whatever; but to execute all that shall be proposed, given in charge, or discovered unto me, by my ghostly father, or any of this sacred order."

"I do further promise and declare, that I will, when opportunity presents, make and wage relentless war, secretly or openly, against all heretics, Protestants and Liberals, as I am directed to do, to extirpate and exterminate them from the face of the whole earth; and that I will spare neither age, sex, or condition; and that I will hang, burn, waste, boil, flay, strangle and bury alive these infamous heretics; rip up the stomachs and wombs of their women, and crush their infants' heads against the walls, in order to annihilate forever their execrable race."

"That when the same cannot be done openly, I will secretly use the poisoned cup, the strangulating cord, the steel of the poniard, or the leaden bullet, regardless of the honor, rank, dignity, or authority of the persons, whatever may be their condition in life, either public or private, as I at any time may be directed to do by any agent of the Pope or superior of the Brotherhood of the Holy Faith, of the Society of Jesus."

"In confirmation of which, I dedicate my life, my soul, and all my corporal powers, and with this dagger which I now receive, I will subscribe my name written in my own blood, in testimony thereof; and should I prove false or weaken in my determination, may my brethren and fellow soldiers of the Militia of the Pope cut off my hands and my feet, and my throat from ear to ear, my belly be opened and sulfur burned therein, with all the punishment that can be inflicted upon me on earth, and my soul be tortured by demons in an eternal hell forever!"

The Chessboard of the World: The Scattered Pieces of a Kingdom

The world is a great chessboard, and we are the pieces that were once strong but have been scattered across the world, separated, divided, and made to forget who we are.

But what if the scattered pieces of this chessboard were not truly lost? What if, instead of being defeated pawns, we were something far greater?

The enemy's greatest fear is not our numbers, nor our strength—it is our unity. A scattered people are a powerless people, but a people who remember who they are, no matter where they are, become an unstoppable force.

In chess, there is a concept called "Forced Checkmate."

It is a position where the opponent has no way to escape—no matter what move they make, they will fall.

We are already positioned within every nation of our enemies. Unlike an invading force, we do not need to cross borders, we do not need to fight through their defenses—we are already inside.

The enemy fights wars by infiltrating, but what happens when the infiltrators are already in place before the war even begins?

The Art of War: The Strategy of the Scattered Army

Sun Tzu said:

"The supreme art of war is to subdue the enemy without fighting."

"All warfare is based on deception."

"When you are strong, appear weak. When you are weak, appear strong."

The enemy has spent centuries keeping us divided through lies, false doctrines, economic slavery, and psychological warfare. They expect us to rise in anger, in visible rebellion—but this is why all such uprisings have failed.

We must move not like an army, but like the wind.

We must appear disorganized, while being more coordinated than ever.

We must seem divided, while being more unified than any force they have ever faced.

They expect riots—we must give them silence.

They expect noise—we must whisper where they cannot hear.

They expect chaos—we must move with order that cannot be detected.

They expect us to run from them—we must already be behind them.

The Endgame: The Kingdom Restored

The world we see today is an illusion—it is built on the deception that our enemies are untouchable, that they hold all power, that they cannot be removed.

But they can.

There is only one move left on the chessboard that ends the game.

It is not a direct attack. It is not an open battle. It is not a declaration of war.

It is a whisper that spreads like fire.

It is a quiet realization that grows into unshakable resolve.

It is an unbreakable network of people who already exist within their walls, waiting for the moment when the game is forced into checkmate.

Final Message to the Kings and Queens in Exile

You have always been in the enemy's lands.

But what happens when the pieces they thought they controlled—stand up from the board and move on their own?

The Kingdom is not lost—it is simply scattered.

The army is not weak—it is simply sleeping.

The enemy is not invincible—they are simply overconfident.

And overconfidence is the greatest weakness of all.

The game is not over.

It has only just begun.

Part Two - The Chessboard of the World: How to Dismantle a Corrupt Empire Piece by Piece

"A wise chess player never attacks all at once—he isolates, weakens, and controls the board before delivering checkmate."

A corrupt global empire is like a massive chessboard, with its power resting not on a single king, but on the careful positioning of pieces that control the game. Each piece on the board represents a different pillar of their control:

The King → The ruling elite, the puppet masters.

The Queen → The media, their strongest weapon of manipulation.

The Rooks → The legal system & law enforcement, enforcing the illusion of control.

The Bishops → The financial institutions, keeping the enemy's money flowing.

The Knights → The intelligence agencies, infiltrators moving in unpredictable ways.

The Pawns → The general public, unknowingly serving the system.

To bring down a corrupt empire, you do not strike the king first—instead, you remove his ability to move, weaken his defenses, and cut off his supply lines.

Let's break this down piece by piece.

1. The Queen (Media & Propaganda) – Control the Narrative, Control the Board

In chess, the queen is the most powerful piece—she moves freely across the board, influencing everything. In the real world, this is the media.

The corrupt elite do not control people with brute force alone—they control them by controlling what they believe to be true.

Takedown Strategy:

Expose the manipulation → The first step is to teach people that the media is a weapon, not a source of truth.

Create alternative narratives → Do not just reject their media—replace it with truth-based media.

Turn their weapon against them → Use their platforms to spread ideas they cannot control. Leak their lies, force them into contradictions, make them lose credibility.

Without the queen, the king is vulnerable.

2. The Rooks (Legal & Law Enforcement) – Create Openings in Their Defense

Rooks form the walls of the chessboard—they are the foundation of control through laws, police forces, and courts.

The system relies on public obedience to laws that benefit the elite, not the people.

Takedown Strategy:

Use their laws against them → They have built loopholes into their own system for their benefit. Learn them and exploit them.

Expose corruption in enforcement → Make their enforcers choose—serve the people or expose themselves as puppets of tyranny.

Overwhelm the system → When too many people refuse to comply with an unjust system, the system collapses under its own weight.

Without the rooks, the king is defenseless against direct threats.

3. The Bishops (Banks & Financial Institutions) – Cut Off the Bloodline of the Empire

Bishops move diagonally, often unseen until they strike. In real life, this represents the financial system—the hidden force behind all corruption.

Money is the true god of the corrupt. If it stops flowing, they fall.

Takedown Strategy:

Divert wealth away from their system → Stop feeding their banks, corporations, and industries.

Create independent financial networks → Use decentralized currencies, trade systems, and underground economies.

Turn their wealth into a weakness → When their money becomes worthless or trapped, they lose power.

Without the bishops, the king is bankrupt and powerless.

4. The Knights (Infiltrators & Intelligence) – Disrupt Their Strategy from Within

Knights are the most unpredictable piece in chess—they move in ways that are hard to counter. In the real world, these are the infiltrators, intelligence agencies, and spies working in the shadows.

The elite use hidden agents to manipulate, surveil, and neutralize threats before they become serious problems. But just like in chess, what happens when a knight changes sides?

Takedown Strategy:

Plant truth-seekers within their systems → Every empire has defectors—encourage infiltration into media, finance, law enforcement, and politics.

Expose secrets they don't want revealed → They rule by deception. When their hidden crimes come to light, their own people turn against them.

Use their own paranoia against them → Make them fear their own ranks, creating division and instability.

Without the knights, the king cannot move freely—his own people become a threat.

5. The Pawns (The People) – Turn Their Weakest Piece into the Strongest Weapon

Pawns are often seen as the weakest pieces, but in reality, they hold the power to overthrow the entire board.

The elite's greatest mistake is underestimating the power of a united people.

Takedown Strategy:

Turn passive pawns into active disruptors → Every small act of resistance builds momentum.

Use overwhelming numbers to break the system → When enough people refuse to comply, the system collapses under its own weight.

Teach the pawns to become kings → A pawn that reaches the other side of the board is reborn as the most powerful piece.

Without the pawns, the king is left completely alone—checkmate.

The Endgame: Forced Checkmate Against a Corrupt Empire

A corrupt government is not defeated in one direct attack. It is defeated by removing its power, piece by piece, until it can no longer function.

- 1. Remove the Queen (Media Propaganda) – Control the truth, expose deception.
- 2. Cripple the Rooks (Law Enforcement & Legal System) – Use their own laws against them.
- 3. Cut off the Bishops (Financial Institutions) – Stop their money flow, create alternative economies.
- 4. Sabotage the Knights (Infiltrators & Intelligence) – Turn their own people against them.
- 5. Empower the Pawns (The People) – When the people stop obeying, the system crumbles.

The key is not to strike too soon. The greatest chess masters know how to set the trap before springing it.

Final Thought: "What If This Is Already in Motion?"

The greatest war is one that is won before the first battle is even fought.

What if, right now, even as we speak, the pieces are already moving?

What if the game has already begun, and the enemy is only now realizing that checkmate is inevitable?

For those who see, for those who hear—the board is set.

Make your next move wisely.

Part Three - Reverse COINTELPRO: Turning Their Tactics Against Them

"The enemy's greatest weapon is deception—so what happens when we turn their own weapons against them?"

COINTELPRO (Counter Intelligence Program) was originally a U.S. government strategy designed to disrupt, discredit, and neutralize movements that threatened the established order. It was used against the Black Panthers, civil rights leaders, and anti-government groups to sow distrust, division, and destruction from within.

What they never expected was that one day, the very people they oppressed would use their own tactics against them.

Phase 1: Infiltration & Disruption

The enemy's power comes from their networks, their unity, and their ability to act in secrecy. Just as they have infiltrated and controlled others, they must be infiltrated in return.

1. Identify Key Targets

Financial Institutions (who funds their agenda?)

Media Organizations (who controls the propaganda?)

Political Groups (who enforces their policies?)

Secret Societies (who operates behind the scenes?)

Intelligence Agencies (who does their spying & suppression?)

2. Plant Insiders & Moles

Individuals must appear neutral, even loyal to their system.

Operatives should gain trust, access, and influence before making subtle moves to destabilize them from within.

Their greatest weakness? They assume no one can outplay them.

3. Create Controlled Opposition

Just as COINTELPRO created fake leaders to misdirect movements, we must create false leadership within their ranks.

Misdirect their efforts toward pointless conflicts, distractions, and internal paranoia.

Make their leadership question who is really on their side.

Phase 2: Psychological & Media Warfare

The battle for perception is where wars are truly won. The enemy's greatest power is the illusion that they are invincible, righteous, and in control. That illusion must be shattered.

1. Discredit Their Institutions

Expose their lies, contradictions, and past crimes with precision.

Use their own media against them—turn their narratives into weapons.

Flood the public sphere with evidence that makes them look weak, divided, and untrustworthy.

2. Spread Misinformation Within Their Ranks

The goal is not to lie outright, but to mix truth with confusion.

Introduce multiple, conflicting narratives within their circles.

Make it impossible for them to know what is real and what is manipulation.

3. Foster Internal Division & Infighting

Encourage power struggles between their key figures.

Expose competing interests within their system to break their unity.

Use fake leaks, anonymous informants, and deepfake technology to create distrust between their own people.

Phase 3: Economic Disruption

The enemy's true god is money. Without wealth and resources, they collapse under their own weight.

1. Target Their Supply Chains

Every empire falls when its resources become unreliable.

Find weak points in their distribution networks and disrupt them in subtle ways.

Make key resources harder to obtain, slower to move, and more expensive to maintain.

2. Redirect Their Wealth Away from Them

Encourage boycotts of their financial systems—push people toward alternative currencies, decentralized finance, and self-sufficiency.

Make their investments fail by disrupting market confidence.

Expose hidden corruption in their wealth management to force resignations and legal entanglements.

3. Engineer Financial Sabotage from Within

Infiltrate banks, hedge funds, and financial groups to cause internal disruption.

Introduce bad deals, false market signals, and economic misdirection to force financial collapse.

Exploit tax loopholes, debt structures, and financial laws to make them pay for their own corruption.

Phase 4: Political Sabotage

The enemy maintains control by controlling politics, law enforcement, and global governance. This structure must be broken from within.

1. Flip Low-Level Operatives Against Their Masters

Many within their system are only loyal because of money or fear.

Offer them a way out—leverage them as inside sources.

Turn police, military, and government workers into allies against their own leadership.

2. Overload Their Legal & Bureaucratic Systems

Use legal loopholes, lawsuits, and public inquiries to create endless roadblocks against their agenda.

Force them to waste time, money, and resources on legal battles that go nowhere.

Make them fight battles on so many fronts that they cannot focus.

3. Erode Public Trust in Their Government

Expose their hypocrisy, contradictions, and moral failings.

Leak classified information that proves their corruption.

Push for public pressure campaigns that make them fight among themselves.

Phase 5: The Final Blow—Checkmate

When a chess master sees that defeat is inevitable, he resigns. The goal is not to defeat the enemy in open battle, but to make their own system collapse under its own corruption.

1. Accelerate Their Downfall with Calculated Chaos

Encourage overreach. The more desperate they become, the more mistakes they make.

Expose their crimes faster than they can cover them up.

Make the public see them as the enemy—when they lose their illusion of legitimacy, they fall.

2. Set the Stage for a New Order

The destruction of their system must be followed by the immediate rise of an alternative.

Prepare parallel systems of governance, trade, and protection.

Train leaders who are incorruptible and ready to restore balance.

3. Leave Them No Escape

The final stage is the removal of all remaining power structures they rely on.

Those who attempt to flee must be exposed and neutralized before they regroup.

Ensure that what is built after them does not allow another empire of corruption to rise.

Final Thought: The Greatest Trick We Can Play on Them

The greatest trick the enemy ever played was making people believe their control is permanent.

But history tells a different story. Every empire, no matter how powerful, has fallen.

Their downfall is not a question of if—it is a question of when and how.

And if we use their own strategies against them, that day will come much sooner than they ever expected.

The board is set.

The pieces are moving.

And the enemy is running out of moves.

Checkmate is inevitable.
