

Beit Rabban Day School
Elementary School (K-4th Grade) General Studies Teacher
2026-2027 School Year

Beit Rabban Day School

Beit Rabban Day School is an innovative, non-denominational Jewish school on the Upper West Side of Manhattan. Beit Rabban thoughtfully combines progressive education with an emphasis on deep Jewish experience, intellectual rigor, and child-centered learning.

Job Description

Beit Rabban seeks a full-time teacher to hold primary teaching responsibilities for general studies at an elementary grade level, including literacy, math, science, and social studies. This teacher will work closely with a co-teacher primarily responsible for Judaic studies. Together, they will be responsible for the academic, emotional, and spiritual growth of their class as a whole and of each student as a whole child.

Qualifications

- Master's degree in education or currently enrolled in a Master's program
- 2+ years of classroom teacher experience, including literacy, math, and social studies.
- Commitment to facilitate the growth of each child intellectually, emotionally, and spiritually.
- Determination to meet the needs of diverse learners and build on the inherent talents of each child.
- A direct and kind approach to communication with students, colleagues, and parents.
- A joyful and creative approach to problem-solving.
- Identification with Beit Rabban's ethos of being a community that celebrates our diversity of Jewish affiliation and practice and that grows a deep love and ownership of Judaism among our students.
- Commitment to highlight social justice, diversity, and inclusion when teaching.
- Preference will be given to applicants with experience in special education, project-based learning, Singapore Math, and/or structured literacy/science of reading.

Salary Range

$48,000-$78,000, depending upon qualifications and experience.
