Suitable your very own gas boiler is not as straightforward as it seems, there are many things that have to be looked into first. The gas supply might require to be upgraded to a bigger size.

If your old boiler is over ten years old then there is a likelihood the gas supply has actually been run in 15m pipe, the majority of brand-new boiler currently need a gas supply run in 22 m pipeline to within 1 meter of the boiler.

Can the new boiler be suited the same location as the old one?

The condensing gas boilers need to be set up to existing guidelines, and also the old boiler place may not conform to the current regulations, and more.

Don't neglect gas is dangerous in the wrong hands.

All Gas safe engineers need to re-sit all their gas tests every 5 years to be able to continuing dealing with gas.

A boiler that has actually been installed inaccurately can be harmful, the flue otherwise attached properly can leakage carbon monoxide, which you can not scent or see.

Carbon monoxide gas poisoning impacts over 240 people as well as results in around 60 fatalities annually in the United Kingdom.

All brand-new gas boilers need to be mounted to present Gas and Building regulations as well as have to be signed up with the regional authorities. This is a lawful requirement.

Your new boiler may feature a lengthy service warranty, but if you install it yourself, the service warranty might come to be void.

Each boiler is supplied with a benchmark book that needs to be filled in by the designer, it needs to be authorized and also dated. Without these details most boiler manufactures will certainly void the warranty needs to you ever require to call them in.

Do not be misled right into assuming you can see video clips on YouTube, yes there are many to select, on just how to install your boiler the correct method, and also once you have actually completed all the job, contact a gas safe engineer to sign it off.

It is unlawful to sign off any form of DIY gas job.
