

Process should an issue arise during an event

If an issue arises, please refrain yourself from expressing your feelings in writing on a public forum. Please try to resolve it by talking to your event's organizer first. If you feel uncomfortable doing so then maybe tell a friend and have them relay the message.

Anyone not directly involved in any incident should take care not to discuss anything without knowing facts or engage in spreading any rumors that may hurt others. What happens at one of our events should stay at the event.

In terms of how an event is run:

This group is run by the organizers for the organizers, not necessarily catering to all. We run the events we want to run, the way we want to run them. We don't typically do anything for beginners and will spell out how difficult an event may be.

eg: if an event is described as "fast paced" and you can't keep up, you have no right to complain. For more, see: What we expect from you
