	PreCovid I have been teaching classes with a colleague from the Ohara School for ten years twice a month from September through June. We follow the curriculum of the Ohara School. We teach students at different levels within the curriculum in the same class and offer examples of several arrangements for them to complete depending on their level. Since we are two it makes it easier to adapt to their needs. Classes range in size from 6-10 students For example the arrangement pictured is a classic Ohara School one row style front view. There is also a one row multisided view which is more advanced. We would adapt this arrangement to show the differences. The student would then make the arrangement at their level. We normally provide the students with the materials which they then take home. They are encouraged to recreate the arrangement at home to reinforce the lesson.
