About adding OCs to the list:

I can decline your character if they are something I do not draw, are too complex or for any reason I have.

Anyone in the $15 tier or above can add up to three OCs to the voting lists for preds and one OC to the prey list. Your preds will be featured alongside my own characters and “furbait” characters I would like to draw. If a pred character who is not a patron OC wins the monthly poll, then the next poll winner will be a patron OC with the highest votes. You may still vote for non-OC characters during that poll and your votes will be counted in the next.

If your OC wins, I will contact you for your idea and consent. If you fail to respond to me within a 48 hour period, I will instead go with the runner up. As the winner you also decide between ambiguous prey or selecting a character from the prey list to be eaten. After you’ve picked someone from the menu, I’ll contact their owner for their consent and get to work. You may also pick your own character from the prey list.

Non-OC winners will select a random character from the prey list through a roulette, and those who win through this method can’t participate in the roulette again until everyone else in the list has won.

If you want to add your OCs to the list, just contact me through Patreon or Furaffinity. The details must include —name, species, gender, a clean SFW reference sheet and if they do OV, AV, UB and/ or CV.

You may remove/replace any of your three pred OCs as long as none of them have any votes to keep it fair to voters who have invested points in them. If you’re the only one who has invested points and are comfortable with throwing away all their votes, then please contact me.

Prey characters do not have this restriction and can be replaced freely, but if yours has won through the roulette already, then they still can’t participate until everyone else has won.

If you stop paying for the tier that gives you these benefits, you will have up to two months to re-pledge before they are removed, along with their vote count.

If there is something I do not feel comfortable drawing, I will decline it and ask you to change it. I can tell you why I declined it for future reference.
