

Wibbling Rivalry

In 1995, a track titled “Wibbling Rivalry” (1) was released by the label Fierce Panda. The track had no music, rather it contained a fifteen minute argument between Noel and Liam Gallagher during an interview by John Harris in April of 1994. The interview occurred shortly after all members of the band except for Noel had been arrested in a drunken incident on a ferry in Amsterdam. The brothers can be heard yelling at each other over the reputation of their band. They were in fact known to squabble. This argument concerns the opinions of the public on the state of Oasis as many fans as well as critics scolded the bandmates for their actions. Noel takes the stand that having a ‘bad boy’ image is not good for the band. Liam argues that it is all just rock and roll, what rock band doesn’t have some scandal? However Noel thinks that the only thing they should be concerned about is producing good music. Liam can be heard in this clip declaring that he hates his brother.
