

Hello darlings!

I am a queer, neurodiverse artist who revels in the interplay of antiquated technology and contemporary digital art forms. My eclectic style is a vibrant tapestry that weaves together performance art, instant photography and digital manipulation to explore abstract concepts and spontaneous creativity that eventually turn into 3-D forms.

In every creation, I strive to foster inclusivity and celebrate diversity. I love to share a piece of queer history; celebrate the heritage and legacies of those who inspire. Each project is more than just an artistic endeavor; it's part of a larger dialogue about culture, identity, and the magic hidden in everyday life. Each medium I employ serves as a conduit for storytelling, capturing fleeting moments of joy and transforming them into enduring visual narratives that we can learn from.

I am drawn to media that is performative for the audience, and they all tend to hold a gimmick (just like my burlesque work). I started as a digital portrait photographer, but after the pandemic I found a love for Polaroid, toy cameras and other tacky media that embrace the imperfect nature of my practice (she's messy). My visual art is most fruitful via erasable drawing tablets and UV light drawing/stencils. And my performance art? Well, let's just say my gimmick is making people uncomfortable, rather than titillated!

My work is an invitation to viewers: step into a world where playfulness meets profundity, where every piece sparkles with personality!

XOXO, Sidney Sparkle
