Gotou Monzaemon

Gotou Monzaemon, also more infamously known within Japan’s underbelly that houses troubled youth as the Stone Pitbull of Sanika in Okinawa, and everyone in his secondary school dreaded him on account of his penchant for violence. After running wild as the school's de facto muscle, he assaulted a police officer before being apprehended and taken to a youth incarceration center. Gotou Monzaemon proudly displays the fact that he was a problem as a juvenile, up until the point when he was ready to be transferred to another facility. Much to the confusion of his koudai, he disappeared without so much as a warning once he was recruited into the Tokyo Metropolitan Curse Technical College.

Appearance

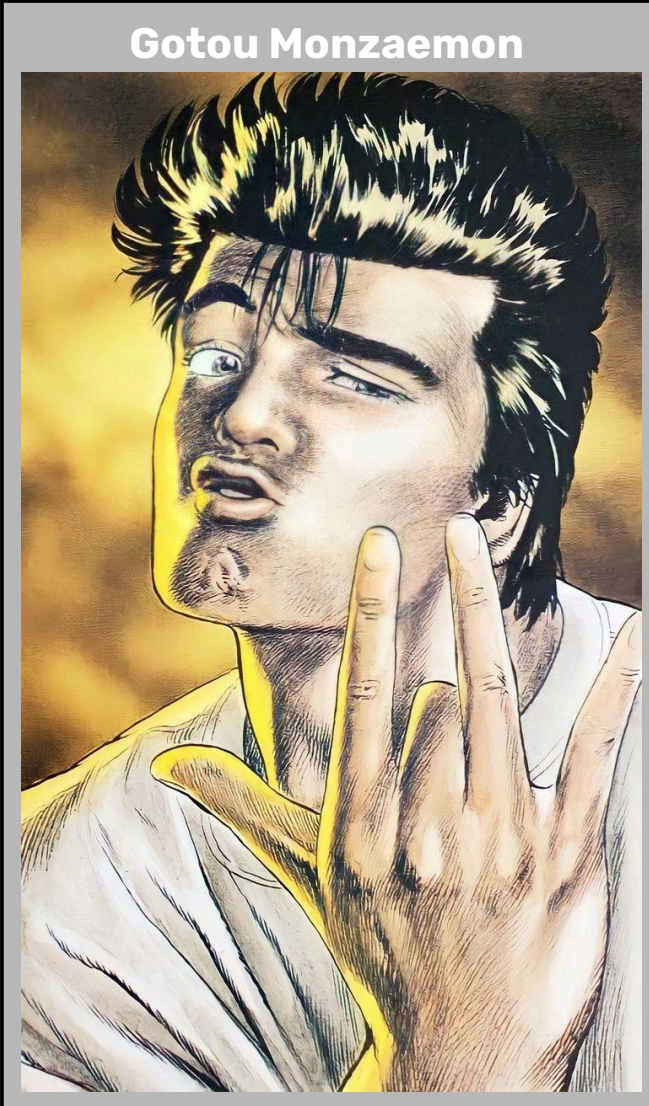

Gotou has jet-black hair with a dark blueish gloss, which is generally slicked back with gel, and brown eyes. He has a peach-to-tan complexion and a strong build. For the specifications of his uniform, he requested a typical black, button-up outfit, often referred to as a "gakuran" for boys, features a sleek and formal design with a high-collared, stiff stand-up neckline. The jacket is fitted, with a row of shiny metallic buttons running down the front, typically embossed with the school emblem. The black fabric is thick and sturdy. The uniform is paired with matching black trousers, straight-cut and sharp, creating a clean, minimalist look. The jacket itself has small, buttoned pockets on either side of the chest, and the sleeves are long, ending with a subtle cuff.

Personality

Monzaemon grew up in a neglected home, with a no-show father and a mother who was always away drowning her sorrows with alcohol. As consequence would have it, he's short-tempered, impetuous, brutal, and enjoys intimidating others who fear him. He has a playful and friendly personality beneath his aggressive, brash exterior. He has also had the unfortunate experience of dealing with so many despicable people at such a young age, including his past instructors and caregivers. Their contemptuous attitude toward the youngster sent him on a road of delinquency that led to his discovery of professional wrestling. As a sorcerer, he has a strong urge to combat, which becomes increasingly apparent. Monzaemon has been described as uneducated and, at times, downright foolish on several occasions, even by his own admission. However, he has repeatedly demonstrated the ability to be bright, insightful, and sharp-witted in grave situations. It's unclear if his lack of interest in academics stems from true incompetence or a general distrust towards established, scheduled learning. Should something be explained in the terms of professional wrestling, seemingly impossible concepts to grasp are a bit more manageable.

While Gotou may not have a polished sense of fashion, he takes affronts to his appearance very seriously, frequently yielding to provocation over his appearance. Each item of his wardrobe is inspired by the outfits worn by his heroes of choice—as well as ideas from his mother whenever she is there. This strange dysfunction of his reveals a streak of fragility in someone who regards themselves as ‘invulnerable’. Adding onto this, he holds a fondness for his mother that otherwise conflicts with his vindictive appearance, holding no grudges against her practically abandoning him, as he understood from a young age that the only way she was able to cope with his father’s abuse was to run to the bottle. Contrary to this, the boy also feels as though a child shouldn’t suffer.

Gotou was fiercely loyal to his gang's boss — whom he once referred to as "the man I'm going to hell for" — and his leader trusted him more than anyone else in the organization. He was frequently assigned sensitive tasks, such as dismantling a rival school's group.

Abilities and Talents

[INSERT CHARACTER CAPABILITIES]

Cursed Energy Manipulation

Average Cursed Energy Reserves [+]

Monzaemon is not blessed by fate by any means of the phrase’s definition. He isn’t much better than anyone in his own weight class; what do you call a body of water larger a pond but smaller than a lake? Nothing worth writing about, that’s what.

Above Average Cursed Energy Control

Just a bit ahead of the curb.

Average Cursed Energy Output

As a beginner sorcerer, his output reflects that aspect as well. He is not particularly gifted in most fields, and that is a fact that he was forced to accept since his childhood.

Cursed Energy Trait: [Steel]

Gotou's cursed energy possesses the unique properties of steel, placing his body in a perpetual state of hardening. This transformation enhances both his durability and offensive power, rendering him nearly impervious to most physical and cursed energy-based attacks. His cursed energy not only reinforces his physical form but also imbues his strikes with the crushing weight and density of steel. Even a simple punch or kick has the potential to break through solid objects.

Steel has a melting point of approximately 1370 to 1530 degrees Celsius (2500 to 2800 degrees Fahrenheit), depending on the alloy. This means that under typical circumstances, steel will not melt or become structurally compromised as quickly as materials with lower melting points, such as wood or plastic. Steel is an excellent conductor of heat, meaning it can absorb heat from one area and distribute it across its surface. This helps prevent localized areas from becoming too hot and weakening quickly,

Corrosion of steel is a process that requires the presence of water, moisture, and oxygen. The iron ore in steel is oxidized or chemically altered to form rust. This rust has no structure and takes up nearly six times the volume of the original steel. Rapid oxidation makes the aura brittle, and crumble quickly.

Cursed Technique

Ticking Time LOVE BOMBER!

Ticking Time Love Bomber, also colloquially abbreviated as TTLB is the innate Cursed Technique of Gotou Monzaemon. It is structured in the same way as a professional wrestler’s contract, and imposes Binding Vows to ensure that that the user follows the instructions down to a specific degree. Acting as the ‘Ultimate Heel’, Monzaemon must first restrict his speech, mannerisms, and other techniques to fit inside of this particular agreement. The physically conjured effects of the ability include, but not are limited to manifesting certain aspects of the ring, tools etc.

- Rocket Rikishi’s Smoking Gun [力士の跳び箱]

This aspect of the overall ability is capable of bringing the buoyant ropes of the wrestling ring into reality, giving Monzaemon the opportunity to either use them as a tether or some sort – or more expectedly, a means to increase his kinetic energy by bouncing his body’s weight off them. Due to this aspect not being a part of a domain, this application is reliant on the surroundings.

- Four-legged Steel God [四脚鋼神]

Shikyaku Kōshin, or when translated to English, the Four-legged Steel God comes to life when Monzaemon decides to mold his Cursed Energy and the constructive properties of his innate ability and forge a reinforced steel chair. In the world of professional wrestling, a chair is seen as the ultimate offense and defense, and in a way – encapsulates their pride. As a result of his own merits, Monzaemon’s chair is incredibly durable and can dish out damage in the same fashion. Should he ever wish for it, it can also be by other stereotypical weapon just so long as it is usually made of steel

History

Gotou Monzaemon grew up in a rough neighborhood in Okinawa, surrounded by the ever-present threat of gang activity. His home life was unstable, and he rarely saw his father, who left the family when Gotou was still young. Raised by an always inebriated mother, Gotou had little guidance and even less discipline. The streets became his second home, and the people in his neighborhood, many of them hardened by the same struggles, became his role models. By the time he was in middle school, he had already earned a reputation as a troublemaker, frequently skipping class, getting into fights, and finding himself in the company of local thugs. Despite such an awful path, Gotou garnered an unusual level of esteem in his hometown. His bravery and readiness to face any challenge made him a formidable opponent, even among the senior gang members. He became a figure of defiance, someone who had fallen through society's gaps yet nevertheless made a name for himself.

Gotou Monzaemon's ascension to power inside his secondary school's gang mirrored his underworld reputation. From the minute he entered middle school, his presence was undeniable—a rugged, streetwise delinquent with a perpetual scowl and a swagger that hinted at his fearlessness. He had a chip on his shoulder and something to prove. The established criminal organization spotted him right away, and despite being a freshman initially, he quickly rose through the ranks with the usage of something he referred to as ‘unadulterated attitude’. It started with little scuffles. He never backed down from a battle, whether it was about territory, respect, or something as insignificant as an awful look. His unwavering attitude and brute strength earned him grudging respect from the other gang members. The word spread that Gotou was not to be crossed. He took on the toughest members one by one, defeating them with raw power, filthy methods, and an unwavering will to win. Soon, the leaders took notice of his rise and recognized his rising significance. The defining event occurred during a raid on a rival school's group, a battle organized by the gang boss. With mayhem exploding around him, Gotou battled as if he had something to prove. He was there in the middle of things, leading the attack and breaking through enemy lines with great abandon. When the dust settled, it was obvious that Gotou had not only survived, but flourished. His act cemented his position in the gang, and the former number two, battered and humiliated, was quickly replaced. He became the proud number two, the de facto enforcer, second only to the leader, carrying his position with a fierce pride that mirrored the raw power he wielded.

One day, Gotou Monzaemon and his subordinates had made an abandoned warehouse their regular refuge, a decaying remnant of the past buried away on the outskirts of town. The house was a deteriorating maze of rusty metal beams and smashed windows, ideal for a group of oddball teenagers who had nowhere else to go. The sound of laughing rang through the lonely halls as their second in command lay back against a corroded wall, cigarette hanging from his lips, and his kouhai distributed around the room in various degrees of relaxation.

Trivia

- He takes care of his personal hygiene to an almost obsessive degree.
- He is allergic to shellfish.
- His favorite food are French Fries.
- Although he is quite hormonal when it comes to girls, he remains a virgin and appears to be incapable to capture the interest of a woman he deems 'high-class'.
