

Skipper had saw a good looking cheesecake recipe by a chef while browsing the internet, he was pretty excited by his discovery as the final product of said recipe looked amazing. It had made him pretty hungry and in the mood for something sweet to eat, he's usually more interested In Halloween candy or something more spooky but thinking about eating a slice of that cheesecake just made him really crave it so he decided to look at the ingredients list at the bottom of the video that he watched. He would need multiple ingredients which are all easy to acquire, he would probably find all he needs in the store or the farmers market for the fresh ingredients, so skipper quickly wrote down all he needs so he could prepare himself for his trip.

Skipper had quickly rushed out of his place so he could go and gather up all the ingredients that he needs to make that delicious cheesecake, he couldn't stop thinking about it while he was making his way that he didn't even think about where he was going first, he was simply just making his way into the world and not going even in the right direction. After skipper was done with his day dreaming, he had just realized that he was walking the wrong one the whole time for either place he had to go, he wanted to get some fresh strawberries first which he could definitely get from a farmer's farm that's pretty close by but he had remembered that he had caused that farmer some trouble in the past due to his mischievous acts so he would be unable to go to them in regards to this ingredient. Skipper had to think for a moment before deciding to just head to the store, he would be able to find all the ingredients that he needs for making the cheesecake so it would be an easy task now that he's actually thinking instead of day dreaming, so Skipper had made his way to the right direction this time around and continued on with his silly thoughts about enjoying a whole strawberry cheesecake on his own. He had to stop himself from tripping one or twice on the way to the store because he wasn't watching his step carefully as he was so immersed in his thoughts, maybe getting the ingredients for the cheesecake might be a bit more challenging than he thought.

As soon as Skipper arrived at the store, he was completely distracted by the Halloween decorations and silly props, he had found some red crystals that he thought looked pretty good before a great idea came to mind. He could add those to the cake! It would make it extra pretty and probably taste a lot more better, he quickly grabbed a cart and added a bunch in before pulling out his list so he can actually start shopping for what he needs. First on his list was strawberries, he needed the best and most fresh strawberries if he's going to make that cheesecake, that also got him thinking about how he's going to make it, the recipe gave him two options for toppings. Fresh strawberry sauce made from scratch or the pie filling, skipper had thought to himself for a bit before shrugging and getting to the fresh produce section, he grabbed a bunch of strawberry packets without checking if they are good or not and added them in his cart. Second on his list was cream cheese so he went to the dairy section and grabbed two packs of cream cheese before continuing to go down his list, he needs some lemons too that he completely forgot to get when he was in the fresh produce section so he went back and grabbed a couple of lemons, now he can move on to the other ingredients. He needs a lot more things including a mold or tin for the cheesecake though he thought he could get to that last, now he needs the actual ingredients first so he headed to get some vanilla extract from the baking section. Skipper stared at all the options in confusion, he was overwhelmed with everything as there were so many options and different labels, he scratched his head and just grabbed the first thing that really caught his attention and added it to his cart before heading to the next section. Now he needs some biscuits for the crust and sugar so he quickly started looking where he could find the biscuits which was a bit confusing and he definitely got lost for a moment in the supermarket looking around but he quickly got it and found what he was looking for, he simply picked some plain biscuits even though he was eyeing the chocolate ones which were too tempting and he grabbed a box of them too.

Skipper looking through his list again thoroughly, making sure that he got everything that he needs and checking everything that he got out. He was looking at his cart and back at his list as he mumbled to himself, he was going to buy some sugar but he has sugar at home so he isn't going to buy more as tempting as that was, all he needed now was a mold or tin for the cake. He's going to make a none bake recipe so it doesn't really matter what he gets really, he slowly started pushing his cart as he looked around the store, wondering what else he could add to his wonderful dessert that's in the making. He stopped and grabbed a pack of tins as something caught his eye, some raspberry jello, he could add that on the cake too, so he grabbed a bunch of it and just dropped it into his cart. He checked his list one last time and he had everything that he needed so he headed to the cash register so he can check out and get to cooking when he's back home, he couldn't wait to start his cooking adventure.
