Who are we talking to?

- Men and women. (Mostly men)
- Age 20-45
- Middle to Upper-Middle Class.
- Entrepreneurs
- Ambitious and Self-motivated.
- Risk-tolerant.
- Tech-savvy.
- Self-learners.
- Engages with Financial Education.

Where are they now?

Current State:

- They want to make more money.
- Desire to quit their day job.
- Want to learn how trading works and how to make money.
- They want to escape poverty.
- They might have lost money before and think that market is rigged.
“Lost a lot of money from 2011 until medio 2016. I felt depressed and felt like I had no meaning in life. I thought that the whole market was rigged and that nothing made sense in life”
- They think that trading is complex and mostly depends on luck.
- They might be worried that the course is bad and difficult to navigate.
“Felt to me like a complete mess. Poor recording and useless strategies”
- They are tired of the rat race and their office job.
“Learned to trade while in the corporate rat race. After two years made way more than my salary. Quit the rat race and have a better life. Can't imagine myself sitting in the office all day and attending useless meetings.”
- They are looking for someone who can explain things to them well and show them the path to success.
- They hear others talking about trading and how they can make money online from home like that.
- They want to save time on learning by themselves.
- They think that being a successful trader is just a dream.
- They struggle financially in life.
- They are surviving rather than living.

- They are scared for their financial future. Worried that they will work their tedious job till their last breath and die broke.
- Their family doesn't see them as someone who can save them financially.
- They are tired of a lack of respect because of their mediocre status.
- They believe that financial freedom and money in general will bring them happiness and enjoyment.
- They dream every day about getting wealthy and successful.
- People see them as an average Joe without expensive stuff.
- Girls they like don't look at them as they are broke.
