

~ BOOK OF BOOKS ~

"Blessed are the undefiled in the way,
Who walk in the law of the Lord;" (Psalm 119:1)
"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way?
By taking heed unto Thy Word." (v. 9)

There is a Book above all others,
In heeding it are nations blessed;
Oh, well we ought to strive to know it
So far above all of the rest.

Yet men deride and denigrate it,
Restrict it from within our schools;
But, oh! 'tis then men reap the whirlwind
And are left off much worse than fools.

Shunning this fount of Godly Wisdom
Then man is left unto himself;
In him are heights and depths of evil
Found no, found not anywhere else.

Why, even in our finest churches
This Book remains a mystery;
Men quote from it for moral lessons
Or for no more than history.

And yet this Book tells a living Savior
Come to save and sanctify the race;
It tells of Life, and that eternal,
It tells of Love and Light and Grace.

It tells the way from earth to Heaven,
It rings a note natural ears can't hear;
It tells of things that men's eyes can't see,
But all revealed by our Father dear.

Oh, should not this book in all our stations
Be not refused but revered and read
In schools and churches, homes and houses,
Yes, even by the infant's bed?

Let God's Word then be e'er exalted
And put within its rightful place
And Christ, the very Bread of Heaven,
Save and bless all of Adam's race.
