The rules for buying marijuana online in Massachusetts

If you're a medical patient in Massachusetts, you've been able to order marijuana online for quite some time now. Recent changes driven by the pandemic now make it possible for recreational consumers to place orders online too.

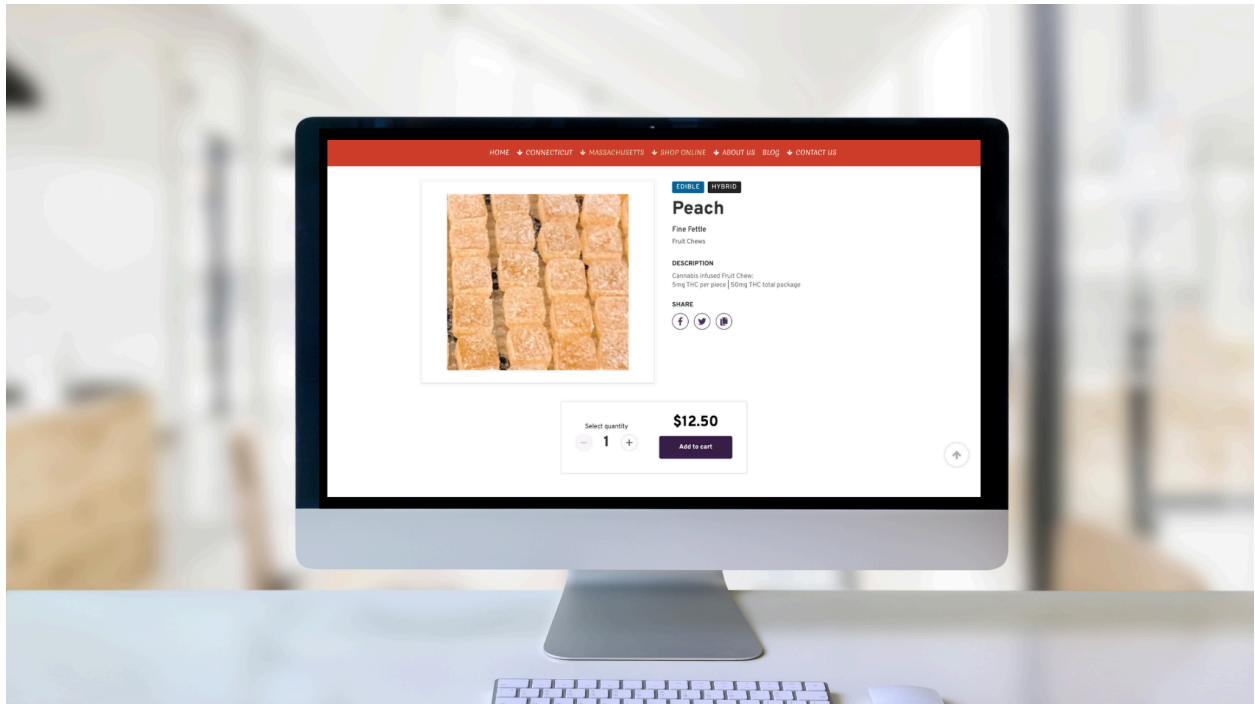

But state laws still exist for online marijuana orders. The same limits around purchasing and possession exist when shopping online. Here are some important rules outlined by the Massachusetts Cannabis Control Commission to help you avoid fines or interactions with the police:

- You must be 21 years or older to buy adult-use marijuana. You'll need to present a valid, government-issued ID when you pick up your online order, both at the door and again at the counter.
- You may carry up to one ounce of flower or its equivalent in other forms. Keep an eye out for your purchase details because different categories may list various weights.
- It's illegal to drive across state lines with marijuana. This means if you're from out of state, you'll want to stay within state boundaries if you plan on carrying out your new purchase.
- You can't send any marijuana product by mail—even to states and countries where its use is legal. That means you can't send gifts to out-of-state friends.
