

Intro

From a gambler losing all self control after losing all his money

0:00-0:03

And a gambling streamer losing $50,000

35:38-35:45

To a man losing his life savings

0:17-0:20

Here are times Gamblers Lose Everything!

Starting with this guy who lost everything he had in his name in Vegas, and had to let the whole hotel know...

Full clip

And it's not just the average person that can't control addiction. Take a look at infamous rapper 6ix9ine who started with over $175,000.

0:00-0:13

And it kept getting worse...

0:16-0:45.

Before he knew it, he lost "literally 100k in a minute"

And while 6ix9ine's gambling money disappeared just as quick as his music career at least he was calm about it... Unlike this next guy.

After gambling $50,000 away in a high-limit room, he couldn't help but yell at the entire casino, as if it was their fault he lost.

0:00-0:20

And he wasn't done yet...

0:21-0:46

But the problem doesn't really lie with the casino, as the comments saw that too.

If you're in a the high limit room you should surely be prepared to lose 50k.

That guy has probably been awake for 72 hours straight. Gambled away his kids college money, no doubt.

That crashout was warranted, but

Xposed was a completely different story since he only had $70 on the line

1:15-1:19

But that didn't make his heartbreak any less intense.

1:21-1:40

At least he had $300 dollars left, unlike the next guy who tried fighting to get it all back.

0:00-0:05

After losing it, he started reaching about the impact casinos have on the community

0:17-0:38

The people in the comments saw the real problem here...

Somebody gambled money that they couldn't afford to lose.
You might have a gambling problem when you blame the casino.

Our next gambling addict, Goobr, went through the same series of emotions.

He went in with $2000 on high low

0:53-0:55

But he quickly realised things weren't going the way he wanted...

1:52-2:00

Little did he know $400 was going to be the least of his problems, because he made things so much worse by switching games.

9:58-10:06.

10:27-10:33

And that was before he did the math and found out the amount he actually lost

12:28-12:36

This was him really holding in his rage over an $8000 loss, because when he doesn't, it looks like this.

11:08-11:15

At least he can say he didn't expect it since he did the math wrong.

Xposed, however, saw his losses coming from a mile away being down to his last $30.62, but he still went through with a last bet anyways.

3:22-3:50

Things got to the point that even his own viewers were starting to lose all faith in him.
You guys will see him on the street with a board that says I need cash for food.

But even that experience wasn't enough to sway him away from gambling as he was back faster than he rage quit. This time, with $400 in the balance.

5:00-5:14

And the dealer's words just made him snap

5:27-5:32

Although $400 is still a loss one might be able to deal with,
However, the woman at this casino didn't just lose her money; she literally lost any communication skills.

0:00-0:15

But maybe that's the way to go, because when some people speak, they go off, and not in a good way.

because while on a quarter slot, things weren't quite going this guy's way.

0:00-0:35

The worst part is that he just kept going! But his battle was with himself.

At least we didn't see how much that guy lost. So I hope for him that he was freaking out over only $100. But these next bets by Yassuo should make your stomach turn.

15:20-15:33

That 50k was before he dropped this bombshell loss amount.

15:38-15:48

Oddly calm on that one, but that's not how all of his games go.

While playing blackjack with $300K in his account, his heart was set on 24, but he didn't bet on it.

51:38-51:58

And that was just the beginning.

52:16-52:38

Since the last game wasn't paying out he switched back to blackjack to end his bad streak.

53:17-53:26

There was no saving this man here.

Neither was there any saving our next guy.

After losing out big halfway through the night, he just couldn't take it anymore and started yelling through the casino until security intervened.

0:11-1:08

Even though they showed a lot of restraint in the start, they couldn't take it forever.

1:57-2:27

Now he has to figure out how he's going to arrange the bail money to get out of jail.

The comments hilariously weren't helping with his case. The best part was when grandma said "that's a little guy."

Men like him yell at security and others, take it all out on the dealer!

This guy didn't even get to the point of winning and losing; he straight up didn't like the cards he was dealt and began screaming to make his point!

0:00-0:11

The employees were trying to stay silent and let him.

0:17-0:30

His friend tried to pull him away, to keep him from self destructing this way...

1:36-1:59

It was clear he was a lost cause, and it didn't take long for the people in the comments to call him out on that too!

lost his rent money again at the casino. Someone else's fault.

Man how many times is he gonna call them racial slurs... jeez.

However Xposed was having things work out a little more in his favor.

6:14-6:48

But you know what they say about celebrating a little too soon?

5:08-5:29

Now what's worse than one gambling addict pouring his money down the drain?

Two of them.

Xposed and Ronnie Radke gamble over $500,000, thinking their combined luck will get them somewhere.

16:07-16:21

While it may have looked like they hit something good with a 20, they couldn't out do the dealer.

16:22-16:32

His viewers didn't think this was just a Xposed problem, it ran deeper than that.

@hbbobby277 4 months ago

Bro says he's done and lets his boy talk him into losing 500k lmao what a terrible "friend"

Next is TOGI - one of the biggest names when it comes to gambling addicts... i mean influencers, and he's quite literally starting his morning with a bet.

2:28-2:35

And he should've called it off there since he jumped from $35 to $923 but just like any gambling addict... i mean influencer, he yo-yoed with the wins and losses for a bit more.

2:49-2:54

But then, lost it all...

2:56-3:02

He didn't even have the energy to rage quit here.

Unlike this next guy who had the energy to rage at God, Jesus, and Christmas after loss after losing on a roulette machine

0:00-0:34

It's hard to feel that bad for the guy when these machines are doing exactly what they're built to do!

At least our next gambler Cabrzy played a game that had statistically higher chances of winning as he bounces back after a string of losses in blackjack

0:00-0:12

But he forgot when the tables turn quickly in your favor, they can turn away just as fast

0:13-0:20

And while Crabzy losing around 5k is bad,

It's not as bad as the King of online gambling, Adin Ross's, $110,000 hand.

0:44-1:05

And he obviously ended up losing, but that didn't stop him from making even more bets.

1:47-2:09

At least he's aware that something went wrong!

This next guy, Woods went through his money so fast he didn't even realize he could stop!

0:00-0:05

The stakes were high already, but he had 20K to play around with. He'd be fine with a few thousand at risk.

Right?

0:06-0:21

But that's nothing to Adin's worst gambling night of his life where he started off with 1.4 million dollars

Play clip over voiceover 0:28-0:38

And eventually made it to 94,000 dollars by the end

19:05-19:38

At least Adin is a multi millionaire streamer, while Bossmanjack is in a league of his own... In this clip he was set to lose 50 thousand dollars in under one minute.

0:08-0:50

At least the comments were able to point out some type of life achievement.
ahh bossmanjack - the best speedrunner when it comes to gambling.
Give this man 50 billion dollars and he would still find a way to lose it in the fastest way possible.

But the problem with Jack isn't that he's afraid to admit his addiction, it's that he chooses to ignore it

5:29-6:01

And in addition to ignoring his addiction, he takes out his anger on the dealers

10:50-11:08

This got a little more concerning by the end of the night..

22:31-22:44

At least we can depend on Xposed to make better decisions... not.

He was hoping to make $1,000,000 back to cover his losses but you can probably guess how it's going to go.

23:09-23:25

And one of the pros to online casinos is that it forces people to rage alone

While in this next clip shows an addict at a physical casino taking out her rage on another guest!

0:00-0:16

The woman in the ponytail showed a lot of restraint here, hoping that the Karen would calm down.

Safe to say she didn't

0:34-0:40

The people in the comments couldn't help but laugh at the way she went down either.
Folded like a lawn chair.

If only she folded like that when she was gambling, she might've walked away with some money.

At least the only thing that got messed up was her, unlike what happened after this man lost at a poker tournament.

0:00-0:13

What's even crazier is that this wasn't the first table he flipped, but the third one!

Play clip over voice over 0:31-0:36

He made sure that if he didn't win in the tournament, no one else could either.

The people in the comments couldn't help but point out how we've all seen a version of this happen before...

It's like when a spoiled kid is losing at money so they just flip the whole fucking game over.

Gee... sore loser.

While that guy dealt with security guards, this next woman dealt with actual police officers.

0:00-0:20

0:40-0:50

The police got her fast, but they weren't fast enough for our next losing party of one...

He kept losing on a high-limit slot machine, and he couldn't take it anymore.

So he took it out on the machine.

0:04-0:30

Security came in to try to calm the man down and get him to leave but...

1:14-1:31

They eventually had no choice but to arrest the man.

1:43-1:52

2:31-2:39

But you know what's worse than embarrassing yourself in the casino like this? Doing it on the streets!

After being reckless in street gambling, this woman lost her Rolex.

0:00-0:06

And then she had the nerve to get mad at her boyfriend for not fighting to get the watch back!

0:07-0:24

She fought her own boyfriend, while this next man channeled his inner WWE champion against a slot machine after losing all the money he came in with!

0:00-0:28

At this point, he doesn't even realize the worst part about his actions.

Independent_Tie_4984 • 3mo ago

-$3000 added to what he lost

He's going to have to work off the debt he owes for that machine now!

But if there's any gambler on this list who truly lost everything, this guy unfortunately tops the list.

In a Singapore casino, this man was so shocked after winning $4 million, that he literally had a heart attack and died.
