Read Me First, Agreement, and Printing Instructions

Disclaimer

These indices and charts likely contain errors. They are not substitutes for exam preparation. They do not guarantee passing results for any licensing examination. They are not held out to suggest as such. They are supplemental materials that you may wish to use, of your own volition, during the licensing examinations.

They are community-sourced outputs built upon indices previously prepared by students for the July 2020 bar examinations. Variance in quality across pages, chapters, and sections is inherent in these materials. These indices are current as of May 14, 2021. Any changes to the Barrister or Solicitor materials after this date will not be incorporated.

Warning

Use or receipt of these materials constitutes your agreement to the terms within this paragraph. These materials may not be reproduced or repackaged in any form for sale or distribution. These materials may not be offered for sale or in exchange for any goods, services, discounts, or incentives.

A complaint will be filed with the Law Society of Ontario against any law student, licensing candidate, lawyer, or body corporate that acts contrary to the preceding paragraph.

Printing Instructions

Index: The indices are formatted with narrow margins. Some of the indices are more than 100 pages long. Two to three columns may be coloured. Accordingly, the materials are suited to be printed double-sided, in colour, and coil-bound or carefully hole-punched.

Chart: Print the charts individually. Do not have them bound together. Instead, include them in the relevant set of exam materials (e.g. family law charts with family law materials).
