Note: This Syllabus should be always maintained in the front of student's class notebook.

World Literature	Literature and Composition
This course focuses on a study of literary genres. Selections from world literature will include poetry, drama, informational texts, short stories, and novels; our emphasis will be on analysis and comparison. Students will take a deeper look at how events shape literature, and how literature influences change. Students will continue to develop the understanding that theme is what relates literature to life, and that themes recur in the literary world. Students will also explore the effect of themes regarding interpretation. Students will also demonstrate competency in a variety of writing genres: narrative, expository, and technical. Students are expected to improve their writing skills; part of this process includes improving their vocabulary.	This course focuses on engaging students in a varied exploration of humanities through the modes of reading, writing, grammar and usage, and speaking and listening. While studying long and short works of fiction and nonfiction, poetry, drama, and the epic, students will think and discuss critically and constructively while becoming familiar with literary elements and techniques. Students will write creative pieces of fiction and poetry in addition to expository papers using a process of writing. These writings will establish knowledge of standard grammar and usage as well as a sense of audience. Students will engage in speaking and exercise listening skills through active discussion and oral presentations.
*Note: Required reading will be disclosed in the first full week of classes.
