Cosmic Support of Inner and Outer Gender Equality

Introduction: About Asteroids and Their Addition to Astrology Charts

In the late 1960's, at a time when the influence of female power was on the rise, a proactive group of concerned female astrologers became vocal about gender inequality in astrology. They voiced concern that gender inequality was systemic and rampant in the traditional practice of astrology. Astrology as practiced in the 60's focused on 10 heavenly bodies and only two of them (Venus and the Moon) were designated to be feminine.

Their concern was understandably fueled by an awareness that, to add insult to injury, more women consult astrology than men. Thus, they set about to change the cosmic landscape by proposing that four asteroids, previously discovered and named for feminine archetypes, be added to the astrological pallet. The archetypes proposed correspond to the Olympic Goddesses, mythologically related to Jupiter, the King of the Gods.

Adoption of the proposed asteroid additions to the ancient art of astrology has been mixed. Traditionalist astrologers, who tend toward resisting change, have been slow to adopt the new and different. Now, however, with Pluto, the planet of transformation, having entered into Aquarius, the Sun Sign related to revolution, it is cosmically ideal to be getting to know the asteroids. This involves getting to know them in general and getting to know one's relationship with them in particular. As a result, High VIBE Mastery is focusing on the influence of the Olympic Goddess Asteroids as a core element of our program content in 2025.
