While walking together, Tula suddenly left Jimmy and Marina on the sidewalk.

"Tula, where are you going?" ask Marina.

"Tula!" Jimmy shouted worriedly.

Then she went to a multi-storey building that was empty and rundown. She lowered her head, dropped her heels, and bent her body to the floor. Then pondering to herself, tears rolled down her cheeks.

"What kind of person am I? I have always considered life to be empty, there is no pleasure other than being with my friends, there is only suffering inside me. I am sorry for this suffering, AAAAAHHHHHH!!!"

Jimmy and Marina who heard that immediately ran to the location. They were surprised to see Tula whimpering and rushed over to her.

"What's wrong with you, Tula?" Jimmy asked while stroking Tula's shoulder.

"Just tell us what happened, we will help you," said Marina.

Tula wiped her tears.

Flashback begins~

"Tula, we want you to have a sibling to comfort you," Tula's mother said.

"I wasn't sure about being an older sister because I wasn't ready for it," Tula said refusingly.

"Come on, my daughter! We want you to be entertained and not feel lonely," Tula's mother said pleadingly.

"We want you to be happy," Tula's father said, stroking Tula's head.

I can only silently listen to my parents.

A year later, my little sister was born. Unfortunately, my parents instead treated her as trash and still cared about me. I was angry with my parents' treatment.

"Dad, Mom, how could you treat her like that! Aren't you parents treating us fairly?!" Tula snapped.

"Hah, it should be you who respect us as parents!" Tula's father snapped.

"You can't go around breaking our rules!" Tula's mother exclaimed.

"YOU ARE EVIL!" Tula snapped.

Then, I took my sister out of the cot.

"Where are you running away?!" asked Tula's mother angrily.

I didn't answer, and immediately slammed the door in annoyance.

*"YOU DAUGHTER OF A B*TCH!" Exclaimed her parents.*

Flashback ends~

"And at that time, my sister and I began to live without our parents until we were taken by someone to an orphanage. We lived happily there," said Tula.

"Oh... How difficult your life is," said Marina.

"At least you're lucky to have a mother who cares for you," said Tula to Marina.

"I also want to feel the love of my parents. Unfortunately they passed away when I was young," said Jimmy thoughtfully.

The three of them hugged each other, contemplating their fate, and smiled together.
