

Zhou Chun Kit, Sam (2C, 27)

Writing Task

Exams are coming soon. Your principal has asked you to write a speech about how students can prepare for exams, the things they should and should not do and why. You will present your speech during the morning assembly.

Good morning, Principal, Vice Principals, Teachers, and fellow Schoolmates. My name is Sam Zhou, and I would like to talk to you today about what students should and should not do before the exam.

First, what should we do before the exam? We should do exercises and read books. For the English test, we should study English more and read extra-curricular English books. As for the Chinese test, we should read more Chinese books and learn to assemble sentences. As for the Maths test, we should do more practice questions before the test!

Next, what not to do? We should not play video games all the time on our phones and tablets. We should not spend more time using our phones than reading a book. We should spend more time on revision, and should go to bed earlier.

In conclusion, it is important to remember that we should read more books, spend less time on our phones, and try our best to finish every test paper.

Thank you for listening to my speech!