ABSTRACT

Abstract comprises the key problem, the purpose of the study, methodology or approach, and the result of the discussion of the study. It provides the empirical findings, methods and implications. A quantitative study should be supported by number and the implication of the result of the study. The abstract is written in English, abstract writing consists of 150 - 250 words.

Keywords: 3-5 words or phrases. Keywords are separated by a comma [Times New Roman 10, 1,15 spaced]

INTRODUCTION [Times New Roman 10, bold]

This section covers the background of the issues or problems and the urgency and the rationale of the study. The purpose of the study and the plan to solve the problems are stated in this section. Relevant literature reviews and hypotheses development (if any) are stated in this section. This part is closed by state of the art (the specification of the purpose of the study and the difference with the other studies) [Times New Roman , 10, normal]. [Times New Roman , 10, normal]

METHOD

This part covers the study approach, the object of the study, scope, the data collection instruments, place, the data collection technique, and the analysis technique. [Times New Roman, 10, normal].

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

This section presents the result of the study, discussion, and the finding. The result of the study provides the data of the study. The discussion section analyzes, compares, contrasts the data with the relevant result of the other studies. The finding section serves novelty in the form of generalization, concept, theory, formulation, principle, and postulate. The discussion result and findings of the study need to be strengthened by an illustration in the form of table or figure (graphic, diagram, chart, photo, example). [Times New Roman , 10, normal]

CONCLUSION

This section covers a brief overview of the result of the study and discussion, including the implication of the study and suggestion. [Times New Roman , 10, normal].
