Privacy Policy

When you use our Products, we collect certain information, which may include: information that you submit to us, such as your name, email addresses, physical address, telephone number; your login and password details; details of any requests or transactions; information about your activity on and interaction with our Products, such as your IP address and the type of device or browser you use; communications you send to us; and information that you submit to us in the form of comments, contributions to discussions, or messages to other users.

We will use that information only to provide our Products to you, nothing more.