All the pictures above represent things that I am proud of and objects that are in my house. The process for these sketches are first doing the base then adding the detail. Then If I have time I give texture on sketch to give a feel of how it feels and how shiny it is. One thing that was challenging is trying not to go out of the lines. But when I do I think of how I can use that to add more detail on the base of the drawing. I learned that you should always take you time when drawing if you do it too fast it won't look too good. And another thing I learned is that sketch drawing helps get your thoughts out.
