The code is bug free. There are no broken links, missing images.	<input checked="" type="radio"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	No problems!
Navigating around the site is easy. I can easily get from one page to another, and I can reach every page on the site.	<input checked="" type="radio"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	I could find everything really easily.
All the image sources are cited. I can see where the image came from and the license that is published under.	<input checked="" type="radio"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Some of them don't have an author, but I think that's because they are CC0.
The required content is there. The site has paragraphs, lists, links, images, and uses styles with rgb colors.	<input checked="" type="radio"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	I really like the style!

I like... I like the style so much. It is so pretty! _____

I wish... I wish the videos were on the site, and I didn't have to follow the link to see them. _____

What if... What if the page about caring for your cat had some pictures that help you understand the instructions? _____

Applying the Feedback You Were Just Given:

There is always room for improvement in a project like this, no matter who you are or how much experience you have in making websites.

In the space below, use the feedback from your group to identify the following:

1. What one thing stood out by your peers as something that was good in your work that you hadn't already noticed yourself?

I thought that maybe my style was too boring, but they really liked it.

2. What two things did your peers identify that would improve the quality of your personal website. List two specific actions you can take to make these improvements?

Add some more pictures to the "Care for your cat" page, and move the videos to be on the page. (But I don't know how to do the second one yet!)
