

https://docs.google.com/document/d/1H-tQ-giV4Pzsh603e59O_3eHsjWM61mzDbpn9cL4L-8/edit?usp=sharing

Word	Explanation	Example in sentence
Interlude	a usually short simple play or dramatic entertainment	Mardler was feeling reminiscent as he pulled open a desk drawer and began rifling through old files.	merriam webster
To glance	take a brief or hurried look.	Mardler glanced across the hall of the bustling police station.
To sigh	emit a long, deep audible breath expressing sadness, relief, tiredness, or similar.	Mardler sighed, for his companion hadn't been back to Scotland Yard for the past two months.	Oxford Languages
To take time off	to take a holiday, to have a break	It was understandable	https://www.gymglish.com/en/gym

	from work	that the detective would want to take time off.	glish/english-translation/take-time-off
To feel reminiscent	thinking about the past. Having many thoughts of the past.	Mardler was feeling reminiscent as he pulled open a desk drawer and began rifling through old files. Previous cases that he and his companion had handled.
The Wraith	a ghost or ghostlike image of someone, especially one seen shortly before or after their death.	You chase the Wraith , a masked Londoner with three murders to his name, through a moonlit derelict warehouse.
Derelict	a big building where large amounts of goods are stored	You chase the Wraith, a masked Londoner with three murders to his name, through a moonlit derelict warehouse.	https://www.macmillandictionary.com/dictionary/british/derelict_1
To have a flair for something	to be very skilful at something	The Wraith has a flair for the theatrics, and he's always been a step ahead of Scotland Yard.

A Cape	Think of the Cape from Superman or Batman :)	The Wraith looks back at you, his mask cold and mysterious, cape billowing in his wake	 https://www.memecenter.com/fun/287032/i-have-the-cape
Billowing		The Wraith looks back at you, his mask cold and mysterious, cape billowing in his wake
To leap up	To hop, jump, or stand up very quickly or suddenly.	He leaps up, and throws a small firework up at the ceiling, his gadget of choice you've found.
A glint of light	a small flash of light, especially a reflected one. From Oxford Languages	There's a loud crack and bright flash above you, and a subtle glint of light at your feet a couple yards ahead.
Tripwire	a wire stretched close to the ground, working a trap, explosion,	You put your head down and keep sprinting, only	https://dictionary.cambridge.org/dictionary/english/tripwire or alarm when disturbed and serving to detect or prevent people or animals entering an area.	to find the glint of light on the floor is a tightly stretched tripwire. The wire catches your foot and you topple to ground.

Caltrops	a spiked metal device thrown on the ground to impede wheeled vehicles or (formerly) cavalry horses.	He looks back again and throws a handful of caltrops on the floor.	 Picture: https://vehi-mercatus.de/crowfoot-caltrop
A crate	a large wooden box, used esp. for packing, storing, or sending things.	climb over crates to the left of the caltrops You avoid the caltrops by climbing up some crates, running across the creaky wooden lids. "Watch the caltrops!" you shout as the other detectives maneuver around them.	https://dictionary.cambridge.org/dictionary/english/crate

Freeze!	The command "Freeze", is so commonly used anymore that most anyone, who is doing something they shouldn't, recognizes it to mean a variety of commands like; "Don't make another move," "Hold it right there," "Police/Sheriff, put your hands on your head," etc.	"He's cornered himself!" yells Mardler. "Freeze!"	https://www.quora.com/Do-cops-really-say-freeze
A dead end	an end of a road or passage from which no exit is possible. a road that is closed at one end, and does not lead anywhere: Link	The Wraith runs into a dead end, an open room with a large window overlooking London at night.
An orb	a spherical object or shape.	The moon and stars overhead, casting glowing light down on the scene. The Wraith pulls an orb out of his cape and throws it down at the ground.	oxford language

