

Chapter 13: The Presidency Essay

AP Government

45 points

Directions: In American history, we have had 44 presidents. Each one has been significantly different than the other which makes each period in our history different. However, the goal of the American president has been the same since the signing of the U.S. Constitution; that goal is to leave America in a better situation than it was in when they first started their term. Presidents such as Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Wilson, and Roosevelt certainly stand out, but is there one president who has done more than all of the others for America? That is the question to be answered.

Who is the most important American president of all time and why?
