Commission Pricing

The above prices are rough estimates. I price my commissions based on the time I spend on them. This is the easiest way for me to ensure I'm not over or under charging my for my work. If you want to commission me the process goes like this:

- Let me know you are interested in a commission and tell me either a) what you would like or b) your budget, or a combination of the two
- I will then give you an estimate according to what you want. My estimates are very accurate, since I have a good sense of how long things take me.
- If the estimate is to your satisfaction and you decide to move forward, I ask for payment up front equal to half my original estimate
- For larger pieces, I will show the steps along the way to make sure the commissioner is happy with the direction the piece is going.
- Once the piece is complete, I will ask for the rest of the payment depending on how long it ended up taking. Like I said, My estimates are quite accurate, so the only way it would end up costing more is if the commissioner had a lot of edits and changes that make it take longer than I originally anticipated. Sometimes it ends up taking less time than I expected so it ends up being cheaper!

I understand this is all a bit complicated, but this is the way that makes it the most fair in my opinion. If you have any questions about my pricing, feel free to reach out! Keep in mind I am more than happy to work within a budget if you have one. I'm also happy to give free quotes if you're not sure if what you want is within your price range!
