

Rei Rama

Rei was born in Albania and moved to the US at 13 years old. He attended the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, where he graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Biology in May 2023. During his undergraduate studies, he completed the honors program, conducted research on Malaria in Dr. Eugenia Lo's lab, and tutored a variety of classes, including chemistry, biology, calculus, and physics. Currently, Rei is taking a gap year working as a medical assistant with the goal of attending medical school. He also serves as the Vice President of SAPS. In his free time, Rei enjoys reading, and watching soccer and basketball.