A song coursing with pure energy, 'Back To Life' is enriching and honest, marking Fergus as an artist beyond his years with audacious yet reflective lyricism.

“Back To Life’ is a sonic homage to a select ensemble of my musical idols, taking a snapshot of life’s fears and low points, and offering up the affirming sentiment that once we are truly gone, we cannot return, so why settle for life’s lesser pleasures?” - Fergus James Fresh off the road from supporting Meg Mac on her sold-out 13-date Australian tour, Fergus has been turning heads with his electric live performance and natural stage demeanour. After selling out debut headline shows this March in his hometown of Armidale as well as Melbourne and Sydney, there’s no question as to why Fergus was handpicked by Ed Sheeran to open the Australian leg of his record-breaking 2018 Divide tour.

Giving fans a taste of what can be expected from this young star on stage, Fergus also reveals the video for fresh single ‘Back To Life’. Featuring footage taken over the course of supporting Meg Mac, Fergus’ onstage charm and energy enraptures all who bear witness, commanding crowds to dance along even if it’s just their first meeting. ‘Back To Life’ follows ‘What Are We Waiting For’, an uplifting tune with an infectious driving beat that landed the coveted title of #1 most played song on triple j over the summer, as well as cosying up in the top 10 most played to date on the station for 2019.

Dubbed as one of triple j Unearthed ‘Ones To Watch’ for 2019, Fergus has made waves since his 2018 debut single ‘Golden Age’, which has now amassed over 5.8 million streams on Spotify and propelled Fergus to be the second most-viewed profile on the triple j Unearthed platform in the first half of its release year.

From strength to strength, Fergus’ raw talent is undeniable. This is only the beginning for the teenage troubadour.
