

Job Description Emerald Legacy Play testers

As we are re-developing the L5R card game, we are looking for players to test how our designs pan out in play. At first play testing will mostly be about re-designed cards, changed rules and combos, finding out what works and which cards are too strong for balance. In a later stage we will also be designing new cards, which of course also need to be tested.

We are looking for players with a positive attitude from all skill levels, from beginners and casual players to experienced competitive players. All input is welcome as the game will be played on all levels and what works for an experienced player may not work for a beginner.

We are looking to create a pool of play testers that can generally play at least two games a week, preferably a few more when we have a lot to test, give feedback on your findings and discuss feedback with other play testers. You can play the games online.

We need players that can give honest feedback without pushing their own personal or clan agenda, as the goal is to create a balanced environment. Even more, we need players that can be unbiased, even if that means powering down your preferred clan or making a clan you don't like slightly better.

If you can play more than one clan, that is surely a plus.

When you apply for this role, please be aware that Emerald Legacy is a 100% fan-based project and we are looking for people to volunteer.
