12 MOTION TO SUPPRESS EVIDENCE

13 Comes now Defendant, pro se, and moves this Court for an Order suppressing 14 evidence -- direct and derivative, including the identity of Defendant, any evidence gathered as a 15 result of Defendant’s stop, the contents of his pockets, etc. -- discovered pursuant to the 16 warrantless, unlawful seizure, search, and arrest of Defendant. Defendant denies the existence of 17 probable cause to believe he had committed a crime, and submits that the search of his person
18 and/or property was warrantless, and reminds the Court that the introduction of this evidence
19 against Defendant would violate his rights under Article I, Section 9 of the Oregon Constitution
20 and Amendments IV and XIV to the United States Constitution.

21 Defendant admits and asks the court to consider all “published evidence”, including 22 including signage he was openly displaying, and flyers he was distributing to the public,

2 photograph or audio recording of the defendant during his well-mannered speech activity in the 3 place of a traditional public forum where he was apprehended during a time when it was 4 ordinarily open to the public, all of which constitutes evidence that was available to the police - 5 as also to the PSU scholastic community and the general public - evidence which could have 6 been obtained without a warrantless, unlawful seizure, search, and arrest; which published 7 evidence the State is continuing to tendentiously ignore, perhaps because it does not support the 8 District Attorney's expansive and constitutionally dubious legal theory, and also tends to 9 exculpate the defendant in the eyes of most reasonable observers and mainstream constitutional 10 scholars¹. If the District Attorney cannot or will not produce such "published evidence", 11 incriminating or otherwise - such as could have easily been obtained without a warrantless,
12 unlawful search, seizure, and arrest, then the State has effectively conceded that no probable
13 cause for the arrest existed, and the court may accept such silence as an admission. If the State 14 will, on its own initiative, concede this in written or verbal admission before the court, then the 15 defendant will accept such admission as a sign of competence and a token of good faith, and in 16 the event promises to refrain from any future civil action against the Portland or PSU police for 17 false imprisonment, or against the Multnomah County District Attorney for malicious 18 prosecution in the matter.

3 UTCR 4.060(1)(b) BRIEF

4 The Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution, applicable in state courts
5 via the Fourteenth Amendment, commands:

7 The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and 8 effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and 9 no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or 10 affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

11 Article I, Section 9 of the Oregon State Constitution provides: 12

13 No law shall violate the right of the people to be secure in their persons, 14 houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable search, or seizure.

15 In State v. Stevens, 311 Or. 119 (1991), the Oregon Supreme Court held that the State 16 has the burden of proving exceptions to the warrant requirement and the burden of proving the 17 voluntariness of a defendant's statements. Defendant contends that the failure of the prosecution 18 to prove the existence of a valid and specific warrant in this case precludes the admission of any 19 evidence that the State obtained through a search and seizure of Defendant unless the prosecution 20 obtained a court order that such a search was reasonable.

21 Warrantless searches and seizures are per se unreasonable; the State has the burden of 22 proving otherwise. State v. Miller, 269 Or. App. 328, 334 (1974); see also U.S. Const. Amend.

2 IV, Or. Const. Art. I § 9. Prompted statements made in custody are inadmissible absent a 3 knowing, voluntary, and intelligent waiver by Defendant; the State bears the burden of proving a
4 waiver. State v. Norgren, 287 Or. App. 165 (2017); see also U.S. Const. Amend. V, Or. Const. Art
5 I § 12. The Defendant is not required to allege any additional facts in a motion to suppress.
6 Miller at 335, see also State v. Oxford, 287 Or. App. 580 (2017). This motion is, in the opinion of 7 the pro se defendant and his assistant counsel, well-founded in law and neither made nor filed for 8 the purpose of delay.

9 Because the State has offered no testimony or argument that the Fourth Amendment to 10 the United States Constitution and Article I, section 9 of the Oregon Constitution were not 11 violated by its actions in conducting a search without a warrant and thereby obtaining the 12 statements and physical evidence which it seeks to introduce at trial, such evidence should not be 13 admitted against Defendant at trial.
