Read the following passage and answer questions 46 to 50 base on it.

If I were given carte blanche to write about any topic I could ,it would be about how much our ignorance,in general,shapes our lives in ways we do not know about.Put simply,people tend to do what they know and fail to do that which they have no conception of.In that way,ignorance profoundly channels the course we take in life.And unknown constitute a grand swath of everybody's field of ignorance.

To me,unknown unknowns enter at two different levels.The first is at the level of risk and problem.Many tasks in life contain uncertainties that are known-----so-called "Known unknowns".These are potential problems for any venture,but they at least are problems that people can be vigilant about prepare for,take insurance on,and often head off at the pass.Unknown unknown risks,on the other hand,are problems that people do not know they are vulnerable to.

Unknown unknowns also exist at the level of solutions.People often come up with answers to problems that are O.K.,but are not the best solutions.The reason they don't come up with those solutions is that they are simply not aware of them.Stefan Fatsis,in his book”Word Freak,”talks about this when comparing everyday Scrabble players to professional ones.As he says:”In a way ,the living room player is lucky-----He has no idea how miserably he fails with almost every turn,how many possible words or optimal plays slip by unnoticed.The idea of Scrabble greatness doesn’t exist for him.”
