Abstract

The abstract should be written in around 150-200 words in a single paragraph without repeating the title under the abstract heading. It should include a brief summary of the whole manuscript which starts from the background of study, relevant methods that are applied, the results of research and conclusion. The abstract must have strong relevance that represent the whole content of the article. Provide at least three up to five keywords in which they are written in lowercase.

Keywords: keyword1, keyword2, keyword3, keyword4, keyword5

Licensees may copy, distribute, display and perform the work and make derivative works and remixes based on it only if they give the author or licensor the credits (attribution) in the manner specified by these. Licensees may copy, distribute, display, and perform the work and make derivative works and remixes based on it only for non-commercial purposes.

Introduction (Heading 1)

The introduction should have a concise yet relevant to the whole research in which it is reflected in a brief explanation of research highlights and its future importance should there be an actual application of the research. Other important aspects that should also be included is any controversial or thought-provoking hypothesis in which it can resonate well with the highlights of the research. The purpose and the background of the studies must be explicitly mentioned and expressed in a coherent and elaborate manner. Please avoid using frequent jargons. If necessary, provide the meaning at the beginning of usage.

Before all of you submit the manuscript, please read carefully and following the information: The manuscript was the result of your own works (original-not plagiarism) and never been published in another journal. The article written in Bahasa and English. (Abstract and Keywords clear written in English, manuscript written in Bahasa Indonesia or in English). All manuscripts should be prepared according to the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (APA) 6th. Manuscripts should be as concise as possible, yet sufficiently detailed to permit adequate communication and critical review. Consult the APA Publication Manual for specific guidelines regarding the format of the manuscript, abstract, citations and references, tables and figures, and other matters of editorial style. Tables and figures should be used only when essential.

Methods (Heading 1)

The methods should include a set of strategic planning from the beginning of a research that is intended as a guideline for researchers in the field, the process of conducting the research and the role of each researcher in the field, the devices or tools that are utilized in obtaining the data as well as their property status, whether they are being lent or owned by the researchers or a specific institution. In some cases, a detailed utilization of software, preferably that has institutional license must be included as well.

In the section, please explain clearly how to conduct your research in order to: (1) enable readers to evaluate the work performed and (2) permit others to replicate the research. The author must describe exactly what he/she did: what and how experiments were run, what, how much, how often, where, when, and why equipment and materials were used. The main consideration is to ensure that enough detail is provided to verify the findings and to enable the replication of the research.

Results and Discussions (Heading 1)

1. Results (Heading 2)

All tables are to be numbered using Arabic numerals. Tables should always be cited in text in consecutive numerical order. For each table, please supply a table caption (title) explaining the components of the table. Identify any previously published material by giving the original source in the form of a reference at the end of the table caption. Footnotes to tables should be indicated by superscript lower-case letters (or asterisks for significance values and other statistical data) and included beneath the table body.

Note: additional notes

The outcome of the research is explicitly described with critical opinion and interpretation from the researchers and experts involved. If necessary, comparison of result from other researches in similar field is provided as well. In this section, more elaborate results and discussions in the form of data analysis are provided with field documentation such as photos or software-generated images, tables, figures, or statistics. Please refer to the templates for more detail on providing suitable supplementary materials that appear on the manuscript.

2. Discussions (Heading 2)

Figures and tables are the most effective way to present results. Captions should be able to stand alone, such that the figures and tables are understandable without the need to read the entire manuscript. Besides that, The data represented should be easy to interpret. Please look at the examples bellow.

a. Manuscript Type (Heading 3)

Submission of a manuscript implies that the work described has not been published before; that it is not under consideration for publication anywhere else; that its publication has been approved by all co-authors, if any, as well as by the responsible authorities-tacitly or explicitly-at the institute where the work has been carried out. The publisher will not be held legally responsible should there be any claims for compensation.

Conclusion (Heading 1)

The conclusion should reflect and faithful to the process of conducting research from the initial stage that lead to the acquisition of new knowledge resulted from the research. If necessary, this may also include the possibility of further research plan as well. This section is where acknowledgement to the funding agency, experts, technicians or institutions that partake in the field work or independent studies with the researchers involved.

References (Heading 1)

References should be the most recent and pertinent literature available (about 5-10 years ago). It is recommended to use reference application such as, Mendeley Application, Zotero, EndNote. Please set APA 6th Edition, Palatino Linotype 10 pt with single space. Make sure that only cited references are listed. Make sure to put cited reference in the reference list.

Acknowledgment (Heading 1)

Authors may elaborate this section by providing information regarding their source of funding, the people or organization that assist research procedure, and if any, the promoter of research who provide translation, proofreading, additional expert opinion. Acknowledgments of people, grants, funds, etc. should be placed in a separate section on the title page. The names of funding organizations should be written in full.
