

Government Workers' Protection of Liberty Bill

Author: Mike Huckabee

Sponsors: Rand Paul, Ted Cruz

Section 1 - Purpose

For the purpose of protecting American workers from conflicting their religious beliefs with government work; we propose Government workers would not be required to sign their name on legal documents that disagree with their 1st Amendment rights, specifically religion and belief. States, like Kentucky, have already stated our Freedoms come first and we cannot be forced to break our beliefs for ones we disagree with.

While some have pushed their religious beliefs on to the entire country by changing the marriage laws that have been in place for thousands of years; we still must protect the minority in this country especially of our 1st Amendment. We cannot let the mob dismiss religious views of our government workers.

Section 2 - Legal Text

New legal documents will have two copies, one with government witness signature and one without. The Government Clerk will choose which one to use on a case to case basis based on their own religious beliefs & moral obligations. Both certificates will be legal documents acknowledged by the United States of America.

Section 3 - Enforcement

The Department of Justice would be responsible for the protection of the civil liberties of government workers seeking to cite this law for their own protection in the service of the United States of America.

This Bill would go into effect the first day of the next month of this bill's passing to law.
