(Los Angeles, CA, November 1, 2024) -- Casting Society (CSA) today announced the television, theater, commercials, short film and short form series nominees for the 40th Artios Awards, which honor the contribution of casting professionals in these categories. In addition, two new categories have been added this year, casting for International Film and casting for International Television Series.

The winners will be announced at galas at The Beverly Hilton in Los Angeles, the Edison Ballroom in New York and White City House in London on Wednesday, February 12, 2025.

“Congratulations to all of the nominees on their incredible work, including those in our expanded international casting categories, which underscores the global reach of the casting profession. We look forward to once again gathering our community to honor the incredible achievements in casting globally in February,” said Destiny Lilly, CSA President.

Submissions for feature film nominees will open on November 13, 2024, and nominees will be announced in January 2025. Honorees for The Hoyt Bowers Award for Excellence in Casting, Lynn Stalmaster Award For Career Achievement, Marion Dougherty New York Apple Award, and The Capelier-Shaw Award, which are also presented during the Artios ceremonies, will be announced at a later date.

First held in 1985, the Artios Awards honors Casting Professionals in more than 30 different categories encompassing film, television and theater. In addition, special honorees are selected for their contributions to the craft. Nominees and winners are voted on by members of Casting Society.

In the television categories, Netflix leads with 17 nominations, HBO/MAX with 6; Prime Video, Apple TV+ and FX each have 5 nominations. The full list of nominations are below.
