

Honourable senators, members of the House of Commons.

It is clearly understood this country has faced a variety of challenges these past few years and the list continues to grow. Housing, cost of living, foreign conflicts, tariffs, possible annexation, constant scandals, and an economy that always seems to be sluggish. Your concerns and your anger are heard and this government wants to be your solution.

The Economy

The government is committed to establishing the Canadian economy as a force in the G7. Currently we know unemployment is nearly 7% nationwide and in cities like Windsor Ontario over 10%. This is due to a variety of reasons. Inflation, tariffs, economic uncertainty, business regulations, high taxes, and business tax rates which are not only unfair but make competition nearly impossible with our American counterparts. This is why the government will be taking decisive actions by repealing regulatory measures such as the Department of Industry Act, reviewing Industrial and Regional Development regulations, lowering inflation by balancing our budget, phasing out corporate subsidies, creating economic free zones throughout Canada around major highways, investing in infrastructure projects and working with Provinces to repeal regulatory measures. In doing so we can expect Canadian products to reach countries at levels never seen before, and Provincial trade at levels we have never seen before. With this plan we will see a major splurge in investment and major boosts in economic confidence resulting in a soar in employment, business investment, and opportunity which will result in more opportunity for Canadians regardless of what happens next door.

- Remove government regulations on a Federal level, repeal the Department of Industry Act

- Review Industrial and Regional Development regulations
- Lower inflation by balancing the budget, expand transportation services into America
- Build the Energy East Pipeline
- Phase out corporate subsidies
- Create economic free zones along major highways in Canada
- Invest in infrastructure to transport goods throughout Canada and around the world
- Incentivize Provinces to repeal Provincial regulations to reduce costs on Canadian consumers

Cost of Living

The Canadian people are dealing with one of the most difficult affordability periods in history, with young people living in their parents' basements at records not seen since the Great Depression. The Canadian cost of living is through the roof with costs soaring above national averages to levels never seen before in cities like Toronto and Vancouver where the average house surpasses a million dollars and the average rent is more than $2500 dollars per month. Along with food prices, insurance, everyday essentials and vehicle maintenance it is obvious something must be done. First and foremost the government will lower the cost of a home and incentivize lower home costs by removing the GST on homes that are listed under $1,000,000 or below the average in that area. This can save upwards of $50,000 or more and will result in more affordable options for Canadians. With commitment to not raising the GST, lowering income taxes, and lowering the deficit through cuts to consultants, bureaucrats, and through the economic benefits we are projecting it will be a major turning point for Canada in the affordability field.

- Improve housing program by increasing supply and removing regulations (See housing policy)
- Invest in Canadian farmers to lower food prices
- Balance the Federal deficit to lower costs and bring down inflation
- Implement a dollar for dollar savings (Pay as you go law)
- Commitment to maintaining a stable GST at 5%
- Reduce income taxes for the lower and middle class
- Remove GST payment on homes under $1,000,000

Healthcare, Mental Health, and homelessness

In Canada, reports of people dying in waiting rooms, failing to get treatment, or being unable to receive treatment in the necessary timeframe has highlighted major challenges with wait times. This can be attributed to a lack of staff, proper funding, rural mismanagement along with regulations, and a system that just does not qualify newcomers fast enough; these are the main issues with healthcare. To solve this issue the government will invest in rural hospitals, repeal the Canada Health Act, improve testing and results for newcomers with healthcare degrees in our countries within 30 days and deliver on promises to bring more young people into the healthcare industry by investing in local programs, colleges, and Universities. This will add staff, add opportunity, bring down wait times, and get people the help they truly deserve. Other ideas will be streamlining certification programs, working with our Provinces, investing in technological advancements, data, analytics, and forecasting to deliver optimized technology and proper improvements based on the numbers and not some office worker's feelings.

Homelessness and mental health continue to ravage the country by storm, as addictions continue to rise to cope with such issues. Rather than abuse drugs and alcohol, the government has a plan for you. We will stop sending Provinces transfers that have illicit drugs legal, we will fund and set up optional treatment and recovery camps across the country, make life more affordable which will reduce homelessness, and dedicate resources to Provinces for better services in schools and communities for mental health and addictions services. It is important to have a good state of mind as the mind drives the person, and under our plan we will turn Canada back into a place of caring and prosperity for all.

- Encourage Public and Private Healthcare delivery
- Repeal the Canada Health Act
- Compensate poorer provinces with a temporary increased transfer of money to provide better resources for Canadians
- Amend and review Canada's Health Transfers
- Drastically lower immigration and prioritize skilled healthcare workers instead
- Increase the number of skilled healthcare workers

Work towards increasing the number of healthcare providers by:

- Working with provinces on increasing the capacity of medical and nursing schools
- Increasing Residency Positions to ensure there is enough doctors for the population
- Streamlining Certification for Foreign-Trained Professionals
- Leveraging Advanced Practice Providers

Increase funding for technological advancement, data analytics and forecasting.

Though improving primary care access by:

- Optimizing Technology and Electronic Health Records
- Leaning into Telehealth and Virtual Care
- Supporting Interprofessional Care Teams
- Stop health transfers to any Province that has illicit drugs legal
- Set up recovery camps with optional treatment for Canadians struggling with drug and alcohol addictions
- Make life more affordable, remove drugs from the streets, and improve treatment facilities to lower homelessness
- Dedicate resources to Provinces for better services in schools for mental health and addictions
- Advocate for better understanding of mental health struggles

Foreign Affairs

The tension throughout the world right now is astronomical compared to in previous times. With constant turmoil, this reminds the Canadian people that our freedom should not be taken for granted, and that our influence on the global front is key even in today's ever changing world. That is why the government is announcing that we will work with the United Nations to promote world peace, increase our own military spending to ensure Canada is well protected, provide our allies with ammunition and resources to protect themselves, and to also deliver up to date information that the Canadian people can rely and depend on from a non bias point of view. It is critical in times like these to put ourselves as a country first, but to stand up for others which is exactly what we will do.

Our national defence plan will aim to benefit our veterans, those currently serving, and those active in cadet programs across the country. The government is committed to NATO's 2% spending target, we will fund Arctic bases to protect our Northern Waters, invest in up to date military supplies and sponsor cadet programs across the country. Along with cadets the government will also continue funding scholarship programs for cadets to continue sending Canadian youth to college through this great program that has already helped so many.

- Work with the United Nations to promote world peace. We will keep Canada in UN Peacekeeping missions around the world to help out.
- Increase Canadian Military Spending to provide for our soldiers to ensure they have the best equipment, and safety protection available to combat the world's challenges
- Provide our allies with ammunition and resources needed to protect themselves and bring an end to the wars
- Deliver up to date information Canadians can rely on with the global instability around the world

National Defence

Our military and national security is extremely vital for success. Let's now talk about the Canadian military and our national defence plan which will aim to benefit our veterans, those currently serving, and those active in cadet programs across the country. The government is committed to NATO's 2% spending target, we will fund Arctic bases to protect our Northern Waters, invest in up to date military supplies and sponsor cadet programs across the country. Along with cadets the government will also continue funding scholarship programs for cadets to continue sending Canadian youth to college through this great program that has already helped so many.

- Commit to NATO's 2% GDP Spending Target
- Fund Arctic bases to better protect our Northern waters
- Invest in up to date military supplies and in doing so manufacture these products in Canada
- Sponsor and increase funding to cadet programs to improve equipment, technology and safety standards
- Commit to funding scholarship programs for cadets in Canada

Canadian Immigration

Canadian immigration has long been the plan to bring in talent from abroad to address needs on home soil, while in return providing much deserving families and newcomers with an affordable, safe, and sustained place of residence. However, in today's Canada many immigrants choose to leave, and the system continues to be broken. To solve this the government will retool the Temporary Foreign Worker program, reduce the number of permanent residents down to 175,000 per year, and reduce levels of temporary foreign workers in industries that are facing high levels of unemployment. This will get Canada back on track, allow our immigration system to be fixed, and give our infrastructure a chance to meet the demand of newcomers that have entered Canada these previous five years.

- Retool the Temporary Foreign Worker Program, ensuring Canadians are considered first to fill open positions
- Retool our immigration system to allow skilled professionals to get tested in their field of practice and have answers within 30 days or less after applying.

- Reduce the amount of International students in Canada from 800,000 to 175,000 per year to help cool off housing market
- Reduce levels of temporary foreign workers in industries that are facing high levels of unemployment

Francophone and Indigenous Affairs

As for Quebec it is important to recognize their position in Canada and to deliver results that Quebec can accept. That is why the government will give Quebec greater control over immigration, require new immigrants to learn French, increase French funding and French services inside and outside the Province and to also repeal Direct Democracy to protect Quebec. The Indigenous communities across Canada deserve to be respected, which is why the government will review spending and direct programs and services into areas that need help the most, promote personal ownership, respect the constitution and treaties, and replace the Indian Act.

- Allow Quebec Greater Control Over Provincial Immigration
- Require New Immigrants Entering Quebec To Speak French
- Increase Funding for French services inside and outside of province
- Repeal Direct Democracy to protect Quebec
- Review Federal spending and direct programs and services to areas with the greatest needs
- Promote personal ownership
- Promote, and establish individual property rights on reserves to empower residents
- Respect the Constitution and Treaties
- Replace the Indian Act

Environment

The Canadian environment has faced challenges from flooding, tornadoes, wildfires and more and this continues to be major challenges for Canadians. To meet the challenges the government will punish arsonists with increased fines and jail time, bring back forest management including controlled burns, and create the Clean Energy Development Tax Credit which will allow small and medium sized businesses to develop common sense solutions to emissions reductions challenges. This will benefit the Canadian economy, our neighbors, and our country.

- Create the Clean Energy Development Tax Credit, allowing small and medium-sized businesses to develop common sense solutions to emission reduction challenges
- Bring back forest management including controlled burns to help new vegetation thrive, and old debris be removed
- Punish arsonists for causing wildfires

Housing

Housing in Canada continues to be another major cause for concern with costs soaring through the roof, this is why the government will sell off 15% of the 37,000 Federal buildings, reform the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation back to its original purpose of building homes, repeal the housing accelerator fund, and remove the GST on homes listed below market value, and below $1,000,000. This will give the Canadian housing market a boost, a chance to get caught up, and a chance to revive itself back into affordable options for young Canadians.

- Withhold transit and infrastructure funding from big cities until sufficient high-density housing around transit stations is built and occupied
- Remove GST on the building of new homes listed below average retail prices
- Remove GST on ALL new homes listed under $1 million dollars
- Cut bonuses and salaries, and if needed reform and fire gatekeepers at the Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation
- Repeal the Housing Accelerator Fund
- Sell off 15% of the 37,000 Federal buildings to create affordable housing
- Reform the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation to its original purpose of getting homes built

Taxes

Canadian taxes are at an all time high, with the average Canadian paying half of their earnings in taxes. This does not allow Canadians to get ahead, or save for retirement. This is why the government will reduce Federal taxes to the following:

- Lower income taxes across all brackets to the following:
- 10.0% up to $55,867 of taxable income
- 15.0% between $55,867 and $111,733
- 23% between $111,733 and $173,205
- 25% between $173,205 up to $246,752
- 28% on any taxable income exceeding $246,752

Law and Order

In order to deal with the rise in crime the government will get tough on violent criminals who reoffend, invest in police forces, build more jails, and shut down safe injection sites to better protect our youth, our schools, hospitals, staff, and country. This will be a historic step in helping Canada get back to being one of the safest countries in the world.

- Get tough on reoffending criminals
- Invest in police forces
- Build more jails
- Eliminate safe supply and injection sites

Concluding Speech

Canada, as a nation we have come so far, and under the promise of our government will make steps to boost our economy, improve our military, fortify our position on the world stage while being the example of determination, grit, and problem solving. We have all been through so much together, and with the government's plan to address the major issues Canada is facing, the government now believes the best days for this country are ahead. Canada on this day lets recognize the monumental step we have taken, the chances we will take, and the results that will follow. Thank you.
