The request for precautionary measures also was extended to Rosa Elpidia Alzate Corredor, official responsible for receiving and processing claims and providing humanitarian assistance to persons detained for political reasons in the city of Popayán, department of Cauca, who had been the victim of continuous acts of harassment and threats against her life and personal integrity. On November 6, 1996, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights reiterated the request to the State of Colombia. On December 17, 1996, the Commission granted the State of Colombia an extension of 30 days to respond to these requests.
