Also, the partnerships on their website have no backing and the admins on Telegram are doing their best to avoid questions on the subject.

This thing raises a lot of red flags.

Why Arcblock is potentially a scam (self.CryptoCurrency) submitted 3 hours ago by Ali13196 > 4 months account age, < 700 comment karma.

1) Arcblock claims to have partnerships with big companies like IBM and SAP - meanwhile there is no evidence of this anywhere to be found; the community admins on their telegram refuse to answer the question that is continuously asked of them: 'Arcblock claims to have partnership with IBM and SAP but there is no reference to these partnerships or any other on the net, please clarify.'

2) Arcblock has no code on Github

3) Lack of technical development roadmap

4) Whitepaper keeps telling you to refer to something else which is non-existent

5) how will they prevent SIBIL attacks if the devs pay the "gas fee"?

6) No mention of a lockup period for their coins.

They want $40mill for a project that has 0 foundations

Justin Tomboulia - is not the Microsoft CIO of Japan; if he were ever, his career there ended in 2013.

The team all have a track record for starting businesses that do not go far; this is not necessarily a bad thing - but are they just jumping on the bandwagon?

I was just about to make a similar post.

Some other things I'd like to add:

- On LinkedIn, the ArcBlock consists of 4 people total however they claim that they have a dev team. I questioned this in the Telegram and Robert Mao the CEO claimed that it was their strategy to keep their heads down (the devs) and not be distracted with social media so they can focus on the projects.
- They have listed IBM and SAP (among others) as partners. We all know how valuable a relationship with IBM is re: XLM. I questioned them on this too. They stated that they are "IBM Business Partners" and "Blockchain coinnovation partners with SAP". From what I can gather, being an IBM Business Partner means you're an IBM customer (<https://www-356.ibm.com/partnerworld/wps/servlet/ContentHandler/partnerworld-program-overview>). In regards to the SAP partnership all I could find was this: <https://news.sap.com/sap-blockchain-initiative-expands-to-27-members/>. Not sure how good news this is (maybe it's really good).

It's disappointing because they were going to be my first ICO.
