INTRODUCTION

The introduction contains the background of the study, the research problems or objectives, and a brief literature review or theoretical framework that supports the research. Explain why this topic is important and what gap in literature it fills.

METHODS

The methods section describes the research design, participants or subjects of the study, data collection instruments, and data analysis techniques used. It should be detailed enough to allow replication of the study.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

Results should be clear and concise. This section presents the findings of the study supported by data in tables, figures, or qualitative descriptions. The discussion interprets the results, compares them with previous studies, and explores their implications.

CONCLUSION

The conclusion summarizes the main findings of the research and answers the research questions. It should also state the limitations of the study and suggest directions for future research.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT [OPTIONAL]

Acknowledge any financial support, institutions, or individuals who contributed significantly to the research but do not meet the criteria for authorship.
