The Harvest

Sown in the earth by skillful hands
Brought forth by sun and storm,
Destined for a harvest day
Fulfilled when ripe grain forms.
Golden wheat in sheaves prepared
For winter that will reign,
The story of the life of man
Told by the golden grain.
Made from the earth by loving
hands
Through heat and rain prepared,
To face the joys and storms of life
And treasured moments shared.
When at last the harvest comes
As the fields receive the dew,
A life well lived leaves legacy
The Master's plan in view.
