Summary :

Arya Stark sat beside a Septa, and all her mind could think of was that the Stag King would arrive in Winterfell in a week. At nearly eleven name days, very little interested her that the Septa could tell her about. No...The most interesting things she had learned were from the books, word of mouth by the sparse wanderers, definitely not the women clad head-to-toe in unshapely dresses. The same women who dotted on her sister, Sansa, and her needlework. Only Old Nan would spare her time for stories about warrior women that had always captured her interest. The type of stories that told Arya her dreams of something more than the future of the lady in her castle were obtainable. Tales of Queen Visenya, Nymeria of the Rhoynar, or even the tales of the women of the Dance of the Dragons. But Arya thought only of The Knighted Princess...

Jaenara is the second-born daughter of King Viserys I and his good-wife, Queen Aemma Arryn. She strived to prove herself a good daughter; a helpful sister - until Dragons dance and riders fall or the realm explodes in fire and smoke.

(If you are looking for all lemons - this is not for you. This fic is about 35% exploration of the 7 kingdoms, 30% Romance, 25% war, and the last 10% is fluff.)
